REPORTS ON PRISON FIRE DISAGREE

The President Hopes.
A Bad School Quarrel.
Cement Could Be Cheaper.
On Cutting Dogs' Ears.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

PRESIDENT HOOVER tells the United States Chamber of Commerce:

"While the crash only took place six months ago, I am convinced we have passed the worst and with continued unity of effort, we shall rapidly recover."

THAT WILL encourage many. And the banks, reducing interest charges here and abroad will help. When money is cheap capital looks to new enterprises, which means hiring labor.

LOWERING the federal discount rate to 3 per cent in the New York district surprised all that lack advance information.

In accordance with our custom we followed the British, lowering our rate here when theirs was lowered.

This gratifies England, which feared that a rate lower than ours would cause British gold shipments to this country.

NEW YORK has a public schoolbook quarrel, based on religious differences, which should have nothing to do with public schools.

The Rev. Lefferd M. A. Haughwout, Episcopalian minister, complains that a "modern history" by Profs. Hayes and Parker, of Columbia College, shows bias in favor of the Catholic religion. An Episcopalian church paper calls attention to the fact that both authors of the history are Catholics. Prof. Hayes says he was, long ago converted to Catholicism, but the charges that "modern history" was intended to subvert government and serve the Roman Catholic Church are preposterous.

THE REALLY preposterous fact is that religious questions, which should have nothing at all to do with public school management, are dragged into public school control.

In this case the book was withdrawn from public school use to avoid any possible misunderstanding, although the highest authorities in New York's public schools system are Catholics.

THE HOUSE agrees to the Senate's cement tariff, six cents per 100 pounds. The industry needs protection against cheap cement coming from Europe, sometimes as ballast.

But cement ought not to need protection. With unlimited raw material, practically free, scattered all over the country, cheap oil and coal for power and modern machinery, this country's cement industry should be as indifferent to foreign competition as is our automobile industry.

THE LATE W. J. Bryan would be amazed to hear Congress discussing tariff protection for silver. He thought silver, at sixteen to one, could stand forever, as gold's younger brother.

He did not foresee Chinese wars releasing Chinese silver hoards, or India stopping silver purchases that have stabilized silver mining for generations.

If it were not for moving pictures, with "silver screens" using tens of millions worth of silver yearly, more mines would close.

Certainly American screens should use American silver and the tariff should see to it.

ROBERT LUBBON is arrested in New York for exhibiting three Schnauzer puppies, with ears clipped. New York's new law protects dogs' ears from mutilation. If dogs could vote they would repeal the law. Clipping the ears protects them, when they fight, and only quarrelsome dogs are clipped.

A sad sight is a hound with drooping ears, lacerated in some quarrel.

IF THERE were a society for prevention of cruelty to human beings it could be useful. It might forbid high heels that throw the body out of balance, cripple women in walking and prevent healthful exercise.

It would examine and condemn many things sold as human food, beginning with imitation chocolate, sold to poor children, made of clay found in Turkey, and flavored synthetically.

RUSSIA combines common sense with social theories that do not win our "best minds' " approval.

On May Day, which is Europe's Labor Day, 1,000,000 workers passed through the red square in Moscow in a parade seven hours long.

AND RUSSIAN trade unions, in honor of the day, presented to the government forty-six fighting airplanes and nine armored cars, for war.

Millions of Russians belong to the volunteer society for chemical and air defense. Six million young Russians are studying aviation, and workers give from their scant wages to make their government safe from attack.

THEY HAVE some foolish theories in Russia, but not our pet, foolish theory that we can make the country safe by taking orders from Britain and telling other nations how much we love them.

Europe's nations hate Russia. But you observe that they leave Russia alone.

There is a good reason.

The wets think he will be beaten because he can't well be anything but a dry.

Many feel that he will be successfully attacked as an advo-

BLUE LAW POLL RETURNS BEGIN TO COME IN

Sun-Telegraph Extends Canvass Districts; Voters Warned on Markups

As the first scattered returns in the Blue Law poll of Pittsburgh by the Sun-Telegraph began coming in to headquarters, the canvass was extended today to the Brushton, Homewood, Squirrel Hill, Hazelwood and Greenfield districts and to two wards of the South Side.

The latest shipment of ballots to registered voters of the city embraces districts in the Twelfth, Thirteenth, Fourteenth, Fifteenth, Sixteenth and Seventeenth wards.

Tabulations of ballots cast in the poll will begin in a day or two, as the returns increase in volume, and the standing by wards will be given as soon as substantial tallies are registered in each.

The standings will be listed on the three questions upon which the voters are asked to express their sentiments with regard to the continuance, modificaton or repeal of the law of 1794, which today is still in force regulating the observance of Sunday throughout Pennsylvania.

Voters are warned that by marking their ballots for more than one of the three questions they invalidate the ballot and thereby lose their participation in the poll.

The Sun-Telegraph urges all voters receiving postcard ballots to mark a cross in one of the squares and immediately deposit it in the nearest mail box.

Nitro Blast Rocks Towns Near Kane

KANE, Pa., May 3.—(INS.)—The plant of the American Glycerine Company at Howard Junction, 18 miles north of here, was partially wrecked today when a nitro-glycerine magazine blew up.

A hasty checkup revealed no loss of life. There were no persons in the factory or vicinity when the blast occurred, according to first reports.

Cause of the explosion was not immediately learned.

Towns within a radius of 20 miles were rocked by the terrific concussion. Residents of Kane rushed to the street, fearing an earthquake had taken place.

Custer City, about three miles from Howard Junction, reported houses rocked on their foundations and windows were shattered.

There were between 300 and 500 quarts of nitro-glycerine in the magazine when it blew up.

TORCH PLOT AND WIRING BLAMED

Fire Marshal and Ohio State Attorney Differ; Case Up to Prison Commission

By AL GOUGH,
Staff Correspondent.

COLUMBUS, O., May 3.—With two widely divergent reports on the fatal Ohio Penitentiary holocaust before him, Gov. Myers Y. Cooper is expected to lay the findings of his investigation agencies before the newly-appointed prison commission today.

Such streng political pressure is being brought to bear in support of Warden Preston Thomas from all parts of the state that it is considered a wise move on Gov. Cooper's part in seeking to fix the responsibility through an unbiased citizens' commission.

The Governor is expected to define the powers of the commission today before his conference this afternoon.

Incendiarism is advanced as the most probable cause of the blaze, which claimed 320 lives nearly two weeks ago, in the report of State Fire Marshal Ray R. Gill.

WIRING BLAMED

Defective wiring is blamed in the report of Attorney General Gilbert Bettman.

To supplement the two official investigations, the Governor, in a statement issued late yesterday, points to four theories suggested by the Ohio Inspection Bureau, a semi-official bureau for rating fire risks.

The theories are: Incendiarism, defective wiring, gasoline torch explosion and spontaneous combustion.

He also calls attention to the antiquated equipment and "administrative control and discipline."

"TWO WEAKNESSES"

Two "major weaknesses," according to the Governor's statement, are set forth in the report of Attorney General Bettman and his official board of inquiry.

"First, the physical conditions at and surrounding the site of the fire brought about by the fact that new construction was in process where a large number of men were working and

STORM RELIEF WORK RUSHED

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 3.—(INS.)—Rehabilitation work, directed by Red Cross and national guard units, went ahead today in tornado-stricken communities of nine Central states where cyclonic storms Thursday night killed 23 persons, injured many and left a property damage mounting into millions of dollars.

Relief work is being centered in the Missouri valley, where the main force of the twisters fell. Nebraska, Kansas, Iowa and Missouri suffered most from the twisters.

From reports of Red Cross workers, Tekemah, Neb., where four were killed, suffered devastating property damage. Five persons were killed at Norborne, Mo., and the property loss exceeded $100,000. Seventeen persons were injured at Norborne.

The death toll by cities: Norborne, Mo., 5; Tekemah, Neb., 4; Duluth, Minn., 2; Lake City, Minn., 3; Antioch, Ill., 2; Kickapoo, Kan., 2; Rockford, Ill., 1; Cicero, Ill., 1; Galesburg, Ill., 1; Westby, Wis., 1, and Lawton, N. D., 1.

De Unamuno Seeks Spanish Republic

MADRID, May 3.—(INS.)—The overthrow of the Royal Spanish government and the establishment of a Spanish Republic has been demanded by Miguel De Unamuno, recently returned here from exile, and excitement reigned among his followers today.

De Unamuno, in the crowded anthenum, last night defied King Alfonso and blamed him for the nation's "unrest and discontent."

Trapped Thrush Disrupts Commerce in Chicago

CHICAGO, May 3.—(INS.)—A bewildered brown thrush, held prisoner for five days in the hollow square formed by the 23-story State Bank Biulding, today is disrupting financial trading routine along La Salle street.

Unable to spiral in the great well that has caged him, the bird cannot climb high enough to reach the narrow patch of sky hundreds of feet above the ground level. Its predicament has created a topic of discussion that succeeds even Chicago's crime troubles.

Anxious stenographers, clerks and brokers abandon their typewriters, tickers and account books to watch the birds frantic attempts to escape. Many of them toss bits of food out onto the window ledges to keep the thrush from starving.

Meanwhile dozens of plans for gaining its escape are ventured, but none has succeeded.

large quantities of material not of a fireproof nature were in use. The penitentiary, while otherwise fireproof, had a roof supported by wooden construction of an inflammable nature.

"Second, the human factor—which is subjected to criticism in the report on the ground of alleged absence of an organized plan to meet the emergency of a fire and also failure to designate anyone to command the special situation within the penitentiary walls."

BLAMES WARDEN

The attorney general's report reads:

"The record shows a failure to designate someone after the emergency arose to take command of the situation at the place of the emergency.

"The deputy warden was, to the knowledge of the warden, absent with leave from duty.

"We find that in view of this absence of the deputy warden, the warden's decision to himself go outside the penitentiary, and the emergency which had arisen by reason of the fire in the cell house—reasonable care required that someone be designated to take command of the situation inside of the prison and at the point of the emergency."

M'DERMOTT IN SOLITARY

Military authorities in charge of the situation reported a "quiet night."

Yesterday was fraught with several minor disorders, chief among which was the placing of Pat McDermott, convicted slayer of Don Mellett, Canton newspaper editor, in solitary confinement for throwing stones at fellow prisoners setting up wire around the tented stockade. Nearly 1,000 former occupants of "White City" are quartered temporarily until repairs on the riot-wrecked cell block are completed.

Contractors are expected to begin work on the repairs by Monday. More than three months work remains to be done, it is said, before the prison will be placed on a normal functioning basis.

HUNT 3 FORNEY WITNESSES

County detectives today continued search for the three McCarthy brothers, Mack, Lawrence and Dale, convicted racketeers who jumped bail and failed to show up as witnesses in the trial of Alfred W. Forney.

According to Assistant District Attorney Roy T. Clunk, Attorney Charles B. Pritchard several days ago remarked to him that he would have the McCarthys in court about Friday for disposition. All had been found guilty of maintaining gambling devices more than a year ago, but sentence had been deferred pending the Forney trial.

Mack McCarthy also was wanted on contempt charges, as he had been served with a subpena to appear as a witness in the Forney case.

When the three brothers failed to appear yesterday county detectives were dispatched to seek them, but no trace was found.

Harrison Township On Daylight Time

Harrison Township will go on Daylight Time at midnight tonight, members of the board of commissioners having voted unanimously for the change at their meeting in Natrona town hall last night. William Murdoch, chairman, presided. The borough councils of Brackenridge and Tarentum are expected to vote on the proposition next week. The movement followed the adoption of Daylight Time by the Allegheny Steel Company, it is said.

5 FACE CHARGES IN TAXI WAR

Three men, said to be former taxicab drivers, were arrested in the downtown district during the night, accused of offering their machines for use as taxicabs without having the necessary licenses. They were lodged in the Central Police Station on charges of violating the automobile laws and will be given hearings in Traffic Court.

The prisoners said they were William Deitz, 39, of 958 Lysle street; Elmer Belford, 34, of 5159 Schenley avenue, and James P. Barr, 33, of 1308 Allegheny avenue. Dietz was arrested in Fourth avenue, Belford in Fifth avenue at William Penn way and Barr in front of the Mayfair Hotel.

HEARING ON COLLISION

Henry Arnold, 35, of Broughton, a Yellow Cab driver, also was to be given a hearing in Traffic Court as a result of a collision between his cab and another automobile in Bigelow boulevard, at Herron avenue, last night, police say. He was arrested on a reckless driving charge. Police say the other machine was driven by Chester Hall, of 201 Richards lane.

David V. O'Connor, of Portman street, a cab driver, was to be arraigned for a hearing tonight at New Eagle, Pa., having been arrested near Finleyville, Thursday, after his cab was wrecked when it struck a concrete wall. According to highway patrolmen who preferred the charge against O'Connor, he was driving while under the influence of liquor.

Ernest Firestone, 28, of 621 Seagirt street, Yellow Cab driver, arrested yesterday at William Penn way and Oliver avenue when a gun is said to have been found in a cab, was fined $25 on a suspicious person charge by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Station. cate of the World Court. His opponent, Prelinghuysen, has turned wet and against the World Court.

However, predictions are dangerous.

MR. MORROW might find a marvelous vote - getter in his courageous young daughter, Mrs. Charles Lindbergh.

If she made an airplane and automobile tour over the state, saying simply to all the voters, "My father is a good man, and I hope you will vote for him," that alone might elect him.

MR. MORROW is an able man. For pure business and prosperity reasons, New Jersey might well choose him.

He would get for his state as much as anyone could get for any state, and probably more.

SOUTH HILLS LEADS GAINS

The center of population in Allegheny County is moving southwestward, according to returns made by the local census supervisors.

With a marked increase in the number of residents of the Nineteenth and Twentieth Wards of the city, together with the steady increase shown by the returns from Carnegie, McKees Rocks, Stowe Township, Bridgeville and Collier and Upper St. Clair Townships and a 73 per cent gain by Coraopolis Borough is regarded as indicating a trend southward. On top of this came the 103 per cent gain for Dormont and the astonishing figure of nearly 500 per cent increase for Mt. Lebanon Township.

Reports received thus far indicate that the South Hills district has a population approximating 125,000. Residence areas have invaded territory which was fallow farmland less than five years ago, and crowded apartment buildings stand on the site of land occupied by cornfields in the census of 1920.

Garden of Eden Declared in Sierras

MARYSVILLE, Cal.—(INS.)—The Garden of Eden was near the Nevada-California state line, Capt. R. A. Labarron, anthropologist and gealogist, told the Marysville Exchange Club.

A former San Francisco newswriter, he is now a Marysville businessman. His studies of the Sierras and the formation of Nevada convince him that the first life on the earth was in that area.

WESTMINSTER MOVE AWAITED

NEW CASTLE, Pa., May 3.—The student flare-up at Westminster College, New Wilmington, on May Day, when the student body voted to end student self-government, still is the chief topic on the campus without a counter move having been made as yet. It is understood that the faculty held a meeting yesterday, but no action was taken.

Under the regulations, the Student Forum was to meet every eight weeks. The students have held only one meeting this school year. This was in the fall, at which time a protest was made over taking the Duquesne—Westminster football game to Pittsburgh after it had been scheduled for New Wilmington. At this meeting the students voted that college arrange more home games.

The students attempted to dissolve the Student Forum a year ago because of grievances, but at that time the feeling did not run so high and the matter was dropped.

Atterbury Denies Political Charges

DERRY, Pa., May 3.—(AP.)—Accusations by political campaigners that he was trying to "steal" the state were denied here last night by Gen. W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad and Republican National Committeeman from Pennsylvania, in an address at the golden jubilee celebration of the Derry Railroad Y. M. C. A.

"I want you to understand that I am not in politics, nor am I trying to steal the state, but I swear to you that I am not going to stand by and see somebody else steal it," said Atterbury.

PARKER VOTE EXPECTED MONDAY

Forty-Eight Senators Are Pledged to Reject Hoover Nominee for High Court

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON, International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—The fight to keep judge John J. Parker off the United States Supreme Court seethed on Capitol Hill today even though a week-end recess brought a temporary truce to Senate debate.

The fate of Parker appeared settled, with the Senate ready to reject his confirmation, although tremendous pressure was being exerted from the White House and in administration circles to secure a favorable vote.

The vote may be reached Monday.

The President was reported remaining in Washington over the week end, foregoing his usual fishing trip to nearby Virginia, in order to confer with those looked upon as probable converts to the Parker cause.

ENOUGH TO REJECT

The International News Service poll, however, revealed 48 Senators definitely pledged against Parker. This was exactly enough to reject the nomination, since one Senator—McMaster, (Rep.) of South Dakota—either will not vote at all or will be paired against Parker.

With McMaster, 48 votes would be a majority of the Senate. The Parker adherents had 44 definite votes, with three Senators still reported as doubtful. The latter was Brock, (Dem.), of Tenneesee; Thomas, (Rep.) of Idaho, and King, (Dem.) of Utah.

If all three supported Parker, the nominee would be rejected by a single vote.

The opposition added to the bitterness against Parker by charging he issued an injunction in the famous "Red Jacket" case against West Virginia miners, which prohibited the buying of food or medical supplies for striking strikers.

The charge was made by both Senator Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, and Black (Dem.), of Alabama. They said it was carried in the same order by which Parker upheld the use of "yellow dog" contracts.

DENIED RIGHT TO AID

The restraining order, as read by Black, prohibited union leaders from "aiding or abetting any person or persons to occupy any house of houses or any other property of the plaintiffs (the mine owners), or any of them (the strikers), by sending money or other assistance to be used by such persons in furtherance of such unlawful occupancy."

The administration leaders forced the week-end recess, declaring they were not ready for the vote. This in itself was taken as a confession of doubt. Under the present arrangement, the vote may be reached late Monday. Although rumors were prevalent, the administration might move to refer Parker's name back to the Senate Judiciary Committee as the first step in having it withdrawn.

Laundry Soap Used As Catfish Bait

TROUP, Tex.—(INS.)—Something new and who'd have ever thought it? It's catching fish with white laundry soap as bait.

This is precisely what two Troup residents did here recently when they cased their rods at night on a creek. One of the men used delicious angle worms. The other was content to feed the fish inexpensive white laundry soap.

Final result: Two catfish for the gentleman who used angle worms for bait. A dozen catfish for the soap-baited hooks.

John D. Loses Boutonniere, Home, Car Searched in Vain

LAKEWOOD, N. J., May 3.—(AP.)—There was much ado at the Rockefeller estate yesterday when John D. Rockefeller lost a boutonniere which had been made expressly for him by a warm personal friend, Mrs. Theron McCampbell, of Holmdel.

Mr. Rockefeller, as it his wont a couple of times a week, drove over to have luncheon with Mr. and Mrs. McCampbell, who have a large stock farm at Holmdel, a village 30 miles north of Lakewood.

Mrs. McCampbell has a hobby of making buttonhole posies of artificial flowers. As Mr. Rockefeller prepared to take leave of the family, she fastened a particularly dainty one in the lapel of his frock coat.

After reaching home, the oil man, golfer and philanthropist discovered his decoration was missing. The house was carefully searched in vain. The automobile was brought out in the strong light and a careful search was made for the missing keepsake.

Finally, it was discovered under the seat lining.

PLAN FIGHT ON CRUISER SACRIFICE

Naval Affairs Committee To Begin Work Monday; Two Sections Criticized

By GEORGE R. HOLMES.
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—The bogey of "Senate reservations" to the London naval treaty appeared on the scene today to worry administration leaders as interested Senators put the provisions of the document under searching analysis.

Neither President Hoover nor Secretary of State Stimson want any reservations to the treaty. The administration wants the Senate to ratify it "without the dotting of an 'i' or the crossing of a 't.'" Whether this can be accomplished remains to be seen, but every effort is to be exerted toward that end.

Active consideration of the treaty will begin Monday when Senator Hale's Committee on Naval Affairs begins hearings. American naval experts who sat in at the London conference will be examined, as well as those who stayed at home. On Wednesday, Senator Borah's Foreign Relations Committee also will begin hearings.

TWO SECTIONS CRITICIZED

As a result of the 48 hours which senators have had to study the text of the treaty, it is already apparent that the questioning attitude of the Senate will center about two sections, (1) the apparent sacrifice of the 8-inch cruiser policy insisted upon at Geneva, and, (2) the so-called escalator clause under which Britain, the United States and Japan may increase their building above the specified limits in order to match building by non-treaty powers such as France and Italy.

As drawn this latter clause permits a treaty power to increase its allotment of vessels in any category when "menaced" by the building of a non-treaty power. The other treaty powers would then be permitted to build commensurately.

SUBMARINE THREAT

Suppose, say the senate critics, that France proceeds to build up a great submarine fleet, as she has evidenced intention of doing. As the destroyer was found during the war to be the best defense against undersea craft, Britain decides she needs 50,000 more tons of destroyers to meet this "menace" at her back door.

The United States is notified of Britain's intention and is left free to follow suit if it so desires. But 150,000 tons of destroyers constitute about all this class of vessel that the American Navy can use to advantage. What America needs, with its enormous distances between coaling stations and bases, is eight-inch cruisers. But under the interpretation of the treaty only destroyers, which America does not need, could be built.

There, say the treaty critics, goes the much-discussed parity with Great Britain. There are few who believe that Congress would authorize the building of unneeded destroyers merely to keep pace with Great Britain, when the real need of the Navy is powerful cruisers.

The administration fears the effect of any Senate reservations abroad. The treaty was born only after delicate labor. Any Senate reservations, according to administration officials, may yet kill it.

The rope broke, deputy coroners reported, as the platform swayed in the wind. The men were employes of the E. P. George Company, painters, Chamber of Commerce building.

BOMBAY, May 3.—(INS.)—The tense calm that precedes the storm awaited the next moves of Mahatma Gandhi and the British Indian government here today.

Gandhi was expected in Bombay at most any moment. He is organizing a movement to enroll 100,000 volunteers to raid government salt depots and it was said that he is drafting further protests to Viceroy Lord Irwin against the militaristic tactics used against his passive resistance volunteers.

Absent-Minded Professor Drives Wrong Car Away

EVANSTON, Ill., May 3.—(AP.)—The absent minded professor, 1920 model, was halted abruptly on an Evanston street.

"Hey, there," shouted Police Sergt. Lorensen, "pull up to the curb!"

"Well, really, what's the matter?" gasped Superintendent of Schools Fred Nichols as he jammed on the brakes. "I was doing only 15 miles an hour; I have my 1930 license and vehicle tag; there aren't any stop streets nearby. Maybe you only wanted to say hello."

"Tell it to the judge; this is a stolen car."

"It's a coupe, isn't it? My daughter always leaves mine for me in front of the hotel. She did so today and I got in and drove away. Let me look at my license number. Oh, it isn't mine!"

It developed that the professor had stepped into the wrong coupe—it looked like his own — and driven off. Meantime W. H. Bamberg had reported his car stolen. With the exchange of cars all was lovely again.

Detroit Fire-Trap Prison Closed by Paper's Drive

BOARDMAN ROBINSON RETRACING STEPS IN HIS COMPOSITION AT KAUFMANN'S

Composition Hard Labor, Mural Painter Says

By PENELOPE REDD.

"Next to digging a well, composition is the hardest of physical labor," said Boardman Robinson in an exposition of his method of designing the series of murals devoted to the history of commerce, at a conference in the Kaufmann auditorium yesterday afternoon.

Penelope Redd

"There is nothing mysterious about painting. A design is something intended, it does not happen. It is conditioned by the space it occupies and you use the same factors in arranging it that you use in distributing the furniture in your room.

"Imagination is the organization of facts or imagery. The characters in my mural paintings were born out of contemplation, and fixed themselves into real beings for me. The whole series was based upon a definite melodic line and I deliberately increased the tempo as the paintings approached modern times. In the final mural, I emphasized the harshness and materiality of our life, through design.

"When I was a lad in Boston, making my first attempts to study art, the Abbey mural paintings were unveiled in the Boston Public Library. I was delighted. The Sargent paintings in the same building were even more exciting. It was not until the mural decorations by Puvis de Chavannes were unveiled that I realized the true functions of the medium. So, at 15, my determination to be a mural painter was crystallized."

Helen Garrison Hawman Marries A. B. Whaley At Noon Ceremony

The first week-end of May is going to be as gay and as young and as colorful as flower-bedecked May herself. Of course week-ends always begin on Friday nights, and to mark the opening of the brief holiday period, many folks attended the village circus held in the Guildhall in Sewickley last night by the Child Health Association.

But before I tell you about this amusing spectacle, there are some weddings today I'd like to talk about. And I want to add that I'm beginning to think there are going to be nearly as many weddings in the "merrie month of May" as there'll be in June.

First of all I want to talk about the marriage of Helen Garrison Mawman, who is the daughter of the Henry Grant Wassons, of Devonshire street.

The wedding is to be a simple one, taking place at noon today. Helen is marrying Allyn Bellamy Whaley, of Pittsburgh, formerly of Toronto, Canada, and the ceremony is taking place in the family home of the Wassons, with the Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, pastor of the Shadyside Presbyterian Church, as the officiant. The best man is Thomas McCutcheon and the bride is having no attendants. She is wearing a simple traveling gown of beige crepe with matching hat and a beige coat.

Following the ceremony, there is a luncheon for only the immediate members of the two families, and then the Whaleys are leaving for an eastern wedding trip, and will live here when they return.

* * *

Is Bride Of May

And still another wedding is taking place today. The bride is Ruth Margaret Thomas, daughter of the William Arthur Thomases, of Darlington road, and the bridegroom is Thomas C. Carson, son of Winfield B. C. Carson, of Stratford avenue. And the wedding is taking place in the Pittsburgh Country Club at 1:30 o'clock, with the Rev. G. L. C. Richardson officiating.

The bride is wearing a princess gown of eggshell satin, and a veil of eggshell tulle, held by a cap of lace. She is carrying an arm boquet of harissi lilies. Grace Elizabeth Thomas is her sister's only attendant, and is wearing dahlia chiffon with matching hat, and carrying a Dresden boquet.

Winfield B. C. Carson, Jr., is serving as his brother's best man, and the ushers are Reed Carson, of Philadelphia, another brother of the bridegroom, and the bride's brother, Ralph Thomas. The mother of the bride is wearing Alice blue chiffon.

After the ceremony a reception is to be held in the clubhouse, after which the Carsons will leave for a motor trip. After June 1 they will live in the Howe apartments.

Village Circus

Sewickley society enjoyed circus life last night with many of its leading members assuming the roles of circus performers for the evening. Others conducted gay booths and sold flowers and peanuts, and many leaders in society enjoyed their part as the audience.

The Guildhall was gayly hung with pennants in brilliant reds, blues, oranges and purples, with bunting of the same colors decorating booths, where all the old-time circus delicacies were sold, and the sideshows.

Mrs. Frank Stoner was the legless wonder; Mrs. Samuel Adams and S. Gale Landon, Jr., attractive Siamese twins; S. Gale Landon, Jr., the wild man; Mrs. John J. Way, the bearded lady; David C. Chaplin, the strong man; Elizabeth Nicholson, the fat lady, and Frank R. Stoner, Jr., the tattooed man.

Besides the side shows there was dancing to entertain, and of course the ring show. Virginia Goldsbury gave her scarecrow dance, of Wizard of Oz fame, and Jane Edson, in a ballet gown of white tulle, directed the pony ballet. Then there were clowns performing on roller skates, there was a wrestling match by Samuel Adams, Jr., and Francis McKnight, and there were living statues, portrayed by Dorothy Jarvis, Mrs. Gilbert Rafferty, Dudley Livingston and William W. Quay.

* * *

Motley Garb

Members of the board and committee members conducting the various booths and taking tickets and acting as hostesses all came in costumes. And never was there a gayer, more motley assemblage.

Mrs. Charles Arrott, president of the Child Health Association, looked charming, in a red polka-dotted white cotton frock made with a fitted bodice and a brief full; ballet skirt.

Arrayed in a pink clown suit with white ruffing was Mrs James Barlow Cullum, Jr., chairman of decorations. She and Frank L. Williams, also in clown garb, I saw selling pop. Among the customers was small Violet Culbertson, dressed as an Indian maid.

Mrs. H. Raymond Freeman, Jr., the general chairman, wore a rose calico frock and a gay green sunbonnet, and carried a huge black umbrella. And Mrs. Hanson Thomas, who was hostess for the dancing, was dressed like Diamond Lil. I saw Mrs. F. McIntosh telling fortunes, and Grace Clarke, in blue chintz overalls, selling flowers.

Younger Set Aids

Rebecca George, in a pink clown costume, was selling candy and popcorn, and Elizabeth George in white tulle, Margaret McCready and Juliet Hillman in red satin pajamas and Mary McClung in a canary yellow crepe dress were selling yo yos.

* * *

Emily Stuart made an attractive farmerette in overalls and gay wide-brimmed hat, and Mrs. P. B. Kirkendall was Pierrette. Mrs. Robert McCague, who was selling tickets, wore a lovely old-fashioned gown of wisteria taffeta, much beruffled, and a quaint hat.

An interesting old-fashioned frock of embroidered white muslin with a sash of pink ribbon was worn by Eleanor Gilchrist. Her coat of the same period as her gown, was of sand-colored taffeta, with an all-over braided design.

Virginia Willock, in a yellow sport dress, was also selling pop corn and candy, and Mrs. Frank Williams appeared as a chef.

There were many dinner parties before the circus. And many were at the Dutch treat dinners at the Allegheny Country Club and the Community Kitchen. And the Alexander Laughlin Robinsons entertained 25 guests at "Franklin Farms."

Visits Shore

Mrs. Mortimer Miller, who has been in New York at the Hotel Chatham, has gone to Atlantic City for a short stay at Haddon Hall.

The Roy Arthur Hunts, of Ellsworth avenue, will give a dinner this evening in the Pittsburgh Golf Club in honor of Senor and Senora Antonia Ortiz Echague, of Madrid. Senor Echague is a Spanish artist, and his wife a Dutch novelist. On Tuesday evening Dr. and Mrs. Samuel Harden Church, of Wallingford street, gave a dinner in their home in honor of the Echagues, who plan to leave the latter part of the month for Madrid and The Hague. They will spend the summer in France and Holland, and in the fall will sail for North Africa, and will be in Morocco the greater part of the winter.

Shady Side Gargoyles Win Drama League Play Contest

The Gargoyle Club of Shady Side Academy won the first prize of $100 and the Samuel French trophy in the sixth amateur players' contest of the Pittsburgh Drama League, which closed last night. The Dracomtra Players of the Mt. Lebanon Baptist Church, for their performance of "The Valiant," were awarded the second prize; the Washington Drama League Players, third; the Jamestown Players, fourth, and the Little Theater of Wheeling (for "The Dear Departed"), fifth.

Honorable mention was given to the Seton Players for their work in "Close to the Wind" and the West Virginia Dramatic Club in "The Little Stone House," while individual mention was given James Arensberg for his very natural interpretation in "Signals." Harry Pedicord in "Back of the Yards," and Helen Verosky in "Close to the Wind."

The bill of three plays presented last night was both entertaining and interesting. For one thing, it gave the audience the premiere of Ray E. Hurd's delightful and understanding little play, "Signals," the vehicle on which the Gargoyle Club rode to victory. The cast, even to the mother and father who began the play seated in the audience, was composed of boys, all of whom played with a refreshing realism that was no doubt one of the dominant factors in the judging. This group of future Gregory Kellys, Alfred Lunts and John Barrymores, included Richard Horning, Robert McCune, James Arensberg, Matthew Stanley, James Hamilton, Edward Bald and Edward Miller.

In "The Duchess Says Her Prayers," the Jamestown Players gave a rather tepid performance, but furnished an impressive setting. The cast: Ursula Jones Sullivan, William M. Bemus, Jr., and Madelyn Jones Osgood. The work of the Washington Drama League Players in "Back of the Yards" was up to the usual standard of this group, which won first place last year. John C. Judson, Henry H. Hood, Harry Pedicord, Mrs. A. C. Martin and Mildred King were in the cast.

The Pittsburgh Center of the Drama League again owes Mrs. Lane Thompson a heavy debt for her faultless management of the innumerable details of the contest; to Mr. Thompson for his efficient stage management; to the enthusiastic and reliable Helen St. Peter for her sane publicity, and to J. Benedict, who looked after the business end of the contest.

The judges were Miss Vanda E. Kerst, of the Pennsylvania College for Women; W. J. Lewis, dramatic editor of the Sun-Telegraph; Mrs. Frank R. Wheeler, of the Drama League; John O'Connor, of Carnegie Institute, and Mrs. Leo Half, former instructor of dramatic art, Northwestern University. The prizes were awarded for interpretation, choice of play, acting and staging.

"Training Children in Social Responsibility" was the subject of the interesting and helpful talk by Dr. Florence Teagarden at the regular meeting of the College Club yesterday. To be socialized, it was explained meant earning a living, inspiring confidence in people, getting along with others, and having a technique for happiness. After discussing temper tantrums, food peculiarities and negativism all of which if not properly met extend into adult life, Dr. Teagarden told ways of dealing with children in order to give them the right perspective and social satisfaction. She would have them taught to face facts, to be joyful in work, to have habits for leisure and to learn to evaluate themselves.

Hostesses for the tea which followed the program were Mrs. George Swan, Mis: Alice Thurston, Mrs. Thomas P. Trimble, Miss Mary Turner, Mrs. C. D. Harnack and Miss Katherine MacCloskey.

Edwin Miller, division chairman, for the best essay not exceeding 500 words in length. Mrs. O. B. Hughes is district chairman.

* * *

Mrs. Guy Oliver's team in the building campaign being conducted by the Episcopal Church of the Atonement, Carnegie, will take over the Pitt Theater Thursday evening in the interest of the campaign.

* * *

Miss Elizabeth Davison has been elected chairman of the educational department, Woman's Club of Wilkinsburg. Mrs. E. H. Wells is secretary for next year, and Miss Davison, Mrs. H. C. Loudenbeck and Mrs. A. H. McIntire comprise the program committee for the department.

* * *

The American Legion Auxiliary to Capt. John M. Clarke Post, No. 305, will sponsor a play to be staged by the Duquesne Light and Equitable Gas companies players, on Tuesday evening in the Young Women's Christian Association, Wilkinsburg.

CRYSTAL FINDS PLACE IN THE EVENING MODE

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph,

PARIS, MAY 3.—We are all crystal gazers this year for crystal both as trimming and as an accessory is very much of the mode and so appears with frequency on the evening scene. Crystal beads are being used on some dresses destined for success later in the season and some observers of the mode believe that in the crystal they can see a vision of all-over beaded frocks next autumn and winter. But sufficient for the day or evening frock is the beaded trimming thereof and so we may leave it for the nonce. The white evening frock looks like repeating its triumphs this season and is already seen in pleasing numbers and variety with us, and we daresay with you, too. For it is a graceful and pleasing fashion and one of perennial appeal and charm, and becomes us even if our complexions do not bear the sign manual of Old Sol.

* * *

THE LITTLE black frock goes big here and nearly every designer is showing an individual interpretation of it thus assuring little danger of monotony or repetition. We have had sketched for you Patou's version of a smart little frock which found instant favor with visitors to his new collection. It is black crepe Sol Sokol with a gilet, collar and undersleeves in tucked muslin trimmed with real Valenciennes. The bolero bodice is ever so slightly circular at the edge and is draped in crossing folds at the front. Loose swinging inverted pleats give width to the skirt at front and back. We imagine that the sketch and the description will convey to you that the simple little frock is often a quite complicated affair.

* * *

WHITE CHIFFON embroidered with crystal tube beads makes a delightfully cool and summery evening frock from Poiret. Two circular godets at the front reach to the instep while the side pieces of the skirt trail slightly and the back section even more so. A narrow buckle is placed at a moderately raised waistline. An interesting crystal bracelet, deep and flaring at the top completes the sparkling effect.

Chamber of Commerce United States that met in Washington ran true to Chamber of Commerce form. They have the maximum of objections with all the minimum of remedies for all our national ills. Of all the things that this country is suffering from, the greatest is overproduction of organizations organized to help somebody that don't need the help as bad as the organization itself.

Mr. Lloyd Takes Movies To Sea and Goldberg Writes for Fox

By DOROTHY HERZOG

(Copyright, 1930, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, May 3.

Rube Goldberg has gone to work for Mr. Fox. The W. K. cartoonist was a bit skeptical about movie lots. He consulted a friend whether or not he should drag his portable typewriter to the office! He didn't have to. Typewriters go with studio overhead. In addition, Goldberg discovered his office was a bungalow. Said bungalow contained two showers. Wonder if bathing is in Rube's contract.

This Harold Lloyd boy is certainly shooting the works on his new funster "Feet First." Get an earful of this: Harold and some 60 company members sail May 24 aboard the Matola bound for Honolulu from San Francisco. Along with the animated crew go: Six fish arcs. Twenty five spotlights. Twenty mile arcs. One sound truck. A boat load cable enabling the troupe to shoot that far away from the truck. Six cameras. Much celluloid. Et cetra.

Harold Lloyd

The sound truck will be located on the forward deck. Heaven help it if a healthy storm swoops upon the ship. Vision, here of an expensive sound truck going down to Papa Neptune and his harem of mermaids. What whoopee the denizens of the deep could make with a sound truck!

FLOATING STUDIO

Lloyd plans to work at night on board ship when the rest of the passengers have gone shut-eye. The Matola will be as close to a floating studio as it could ever hope to be. The reason for the night work is it will take nearly all the juice (electrical of course) the ship has to feed the sundry lights needed in illuminating scenes.

The presence of a live and breathing movie outfit doesn't cost Matola passengers any more. Neither does it cost them less!

GOING "RITZY"

I tell you we're going ritzy out here. The Montmartre, grandaddy of the restaurants in Hollywood, threw wide its doors (other eve to celebrate its new attire and the arrival of Ben Bernie and his band. Nothing small townish about this place, now. It can take its seat next to the big babies in the restaurant and club profession. And does.

Thelma Todd

Quite a crowd of flick-ites put on their shoulder shorts for the premier of Ben Bernie: Thelma Todd and Harvey Priestly; the Robert Miltons; Marceline Day and Alice Day; Vera Gordon and party; Evelyn Brent and party; the Arthur Ceasars; the Harry Langdons, et cetera.

CHEVALIER NOW MAKES CHEWING GUM IN 'THE BIG POND'

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Our moving picture heroes have to be very versatile in order to keep up with the procession. Maurice Chevalier turns to making chewing gum in his new picture, "The Big Pond," shown yesterday at the Stanley and the Enright. He does very well at his new trade, and works so hard that he has blisters on his hands when the whistle blows after the first day's toil.

George Seibel

Somehow we don't feel as sorry as we should about the blisters on the hands of movie stars. One becomes a bit hard-hearted after hearing some of their theme songs.

But Chevalier has a good picture in "The Big Pond." It is the play by George Middleton and A. E. Mason—that play about the American girl who falls in love with the guide in a Venetian gondola. It was a good play and makes an amusing screen romance.

CLAUDETTE IS THERE

Opposite Maurice who has his fascinating accent and his Parisian manner is the cameo profile of Claudette Colbert, who plays the American girl. And her mother is an old Pittsburgh favorite, Marion Ballou, who was ingenue in the stock company here years ago.

The entire cast does as well as any one could ask in a comedy that has been trimmed into a talking and singing picture for Maurice Chevalier. Maurice has an intriguing style and an ingratiating voice—and that is the chief thing. But he also has inventive genius—and his new flavors of chewing gum, the Scotch, the Rye, the Bourbon, and the Champagne, ought to corner the market.

PLEASING STAGE SHOW

The stage show at the Stanley was particularly pleasing because it was engineered by Dick Powell, who crooned some favorite songs in his happiest mood. The tableau, "Top of the World," which closes the show, is particularly effective. The color effects, changing the costumes by lighting, proved startling and beautiful. And five girls, the Ehtors, in a display of flying gymnastics deserved the great applause they got.

At the Enright the stage show was in charge of Paul Spor, who was assisted by Leo Rachiel and Madeline Ward. "Crazy Rhythm" indicates that syncopation was not ignored. Here, too, the color effects and the dancing were notable.

ALDINE'S PHOTOPLAY, 'THREE SISTERS,' GOOD FILM

By HOWARD L. BROWNING, JR.

The Aldine presents Arnold Bennett's "Old Wives' Tale," Latinized, romanticized, with an extra sister, a touch of Italian nobility, a theme song, and the title, "Three Sisters." It is a good picture.

It's a tale about a mother—an impoverished countess of ancient Roman lineage, with three daughters. The scene is laid in Italian provinces, three hours drive from the Austrian border, during and after the World War.

One daughter marries a dancing, singing, merry Italiano. Her mother allows herself to be cheated in selling a vineyard for her daughter's dowry. The daughter attempting to call off the bargain argues with a crooked banker, stabs him. She and her husband flee to America, prosper.

CAUGHT IN WAR

Daughter No. two is caught in Austria at the outbreak of the great war—she is an opera singer married to her manager.

Daughter No. three stays at home, marries a duke's son, disinherited for his love of her. Both die, leaving an infant son.

Battles in the village send the now impoverished mother to Rome. Remittances from America are waylaid by the banker who cheated in the dowry affair. The duke and duchess take the mother's last comfort, her grandson, from her in a court battle.

And the surviving are reunited after the war.

EMOTION RESTRAINED

The director has made a successful effort to portray an Anglicized idea of Latin emotion, without overdoing the higher moments, well illustrated in the restraint evidenced when the baby is given by the judge to the duke after its grandmother's subdued pathetic plea for possession of the child.

"Three Sisters" comes from an artistic, human, understanding director. Louise Dresser, Tom Particola, June Collyer, Joyce Compton have co-operated to make this an outstanding picture.

The first sound newsreel from the African jungles, with a tiger fight as high spot, is well worth mention on an interesting program.

Believe-It-or-Not Now Is Film Feature

Robert L. Ripley has made his initial bow in the movies and his first "Believe It or Not" all-talkie short has been released for distribution throughout the country.

Among the featured players in the picture are One Long Hop, the Chinese boy who was named after Lindbergh; Cygna Conley, who talks 200 words in 20 seconds, and the young lady who jumps through a cigaret proffered by Ripley.

Ripley, the man who made "Believe It or Not" a by-word and slogan throughout the two hemispheres, is making a series of 25 Vitaphone Varieties for Warner Brothers, in which he will depict and explain the various oddities and phenomena he has uncovered in his travels through more than 70 countries.

Radio Wizard

HERMAN AND SAMMY, MRS. TIMBERG'S BOYS, IN PENN

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

Charles Buddy Rogers goes zooming skyward again in "Young Eagles," the new talkie in the Penn. It is another "Wings" in theme. But it is not another "Wings" in thrills.

The movies have fought the war in the air so many times that planes hurtling to earth and heroic young aviators looking very grim in their smeared faces have become commonplace.

Certainly "Young Eagles" develops little that is new in thrills or in story. And Mr. Rogers, looking handsome enough and soldierly enough, doesn't arouse so very much interest. We know that after all the zooming and whirling is over, he will get the girl.

WAR AND PILLOWS

Just one thing makes "Young Eagles" a little different from the usual war stuff. It pushes the brotherly love idea in at the close. Two battle enemies shake hands and call each other "good guy" and "comrade."

Grim war scenes and gay Parisian episodes are interminglied. There are drinking bouts and pillow fights. Jean Arthur appears as the heroine. Paul Lukas does an act as a German ace. Stuart Erwin is much in evidence, too. Droll and comic, he sprinkles the laughs about.

THE TIMBERG BOYS

"Krazyland," on the stage, is lively and entertaining. It is a real show. The Timberg boys, Herman and Brother Sammy, are prominent. Herman is the clown, the dancer. Sammy is the master of ceremonies. They begin with a geography lesson and end with a live tune that sends the Chester Hale Girls into a snappy finale. Barbara Blair, a little girl who knows her shivers, contributes a lot to the production.

NEW PICTURES TODAY; STAGE PLAYS HERE NEXT WEEK

Walter Hampden opens his engagement in the Alvin Monday night with a modern version of "Richelieu," which will be repeated Tuesday, Thursday and Friday evenings. The play "Caponsacchi" is scheduled for Wednesday matinee and night and Saturday night. For one performance only, the Saturday matinee, Mr. Hampden will present "Hamlet." Seats are now on sale for all performances.

William Gillette will present Sherlock Holmes" in the Nixon next week.

"After Dark," oldtime melodrama, will be offered in the Pitt next week by the George Sharp players.

NEW SHOWS TODAY

Francill, heralded as the radio wizard, opens today as a feature in the Harris. Marion Davies is appearing on the screen in "Not So Dumb."

After many postponements "Alias French Gertie" opens today in the R-K-O Sheridan Square. Ben Lyon and Bebe Daniels are co-featured in the cast.

Dancing Tonight In Kennywood Park

There will be dancing in the Kennywood Park pavilion tonight, Ralph Harrison's orchestra furnishing the music. Four concerts will be played in Kennywood tomorrow by Danny Nirella's Band. All amusements including new devices, "Laff-in-the Dark" and the Auto Ride, will be in operation. Final preparations are being made for the opening of Kennywood's picnic season Friday, May 16 when the Penn Township schools inaugurate the outings. John Robinson's elephants then will be the first of the outdoor acts of the season.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

Ghosts

If I could have one wish—that wish would be
To bring the glamour back that once we knew.
The laughing, whistling lad who passed for me—
The gay and lovely girl who once was you;

Surely, this drab young pair who quarrel and fret
And mutter phrases commonplace and cold,
Are not the magic two who slew regret
With words and kisses, warm and overbold.

No cross in life is half so sad as this—
That love dies down to nothingless at last,
And all that's worth a recollection is
The vanished rapture of a fevered past.

Why, it seems yesterday my heart would beat
—Little Boy Blue.

Origin

The expression, "He's a log-roller," or, "They are log-rolling each other," has aroused the curiosity of some readers, who write to inquire its meaning.

The expression is employed frequently by critics of columnists, novelists and others who write, but "log-rolling" comes from politics, which borrowed it from the early settlers. The early settlers in this country helped each other clear the land by combining to roll the logs from their fields.

In politics, a combination will say to another: "I'll 'scratch your back, if you'll scratch mine." Thus they arrange to have their pet bills passed, etc. In effect, one will say to the other: "If you will help me roll my log, which is too heavy for me alone, I will help you roll yours."

A Form of Criticism

Take it from the Town Crier, a screen actress is suing her husband for divorce on the grounds of mental cruelty.

It is rumored that he attempted to make her memorize the alphabet.

Heheheh

"I say, stop," said the girl, "do you hear me, stop, you're squeezing too hard, stop, please stop, oh, oh, stop."

Fox Pass

You never can tell when you're putting your foot in it. In one of the cafes we discussed show girls with a prominent producer.

"Show business is grand for some people," we said. "Take that Miss Soandso in your show. Most girls would give their right arms to get in a Broadway show, but she quit your show to marry, and thrn shortly after she left her husband to come back to the stage. And, the first night she was back, mind you, some chump gave her a diamond bracelet!"

"Some chump?" said the producer sarcastically.

"Uh-huh," we uh-huh'd as we took our departure.

The chump, we learned an hour later, was our listener.

Mosaic

My heart you fractured into useless bits,
And laughed to think no one would ever prize it.
With tears I soldered it so each part fits
A new design; now all men idolize it. —C. L. H.

By Way of Report

The tottering burlesque branch of the profession has hit upon a new plan to save itself from total ruin. The plot, however, will help congest the Broadway pavements, for henceforth the chorus girls in the burlee q's will be recruited in the various towns on the circuit.

In this manner the traveling shows will save all those railroad fares and excess baggage on their trunks, etc. Each town will have a stock company of terpsichorines who will be rehearsed a week in advance, and upon arrival every Monday morning the principals will go thru a dress rehearsal.

This will also do away with many of the stage hands necessary for a traveling troupe. A touring stage mechanic, incidentally, gets $116 weekly. The orchestra leader, who very likely studied for many years until he was accomplished, gets a mere $90.

Merciless Truth

Epigram observed under the glasstop of a Broadway merchant's desk: "If we could only see ourselves as others see us, we'd never speak to them again."

Look Who's Talkin'!

"In fact," says Bernarr Macfadden, "Henry Ford is just a big boy grown up."

For that matter, Bernie isn't such a great big man, himself. Up to a year ago he walked to work in his naked tootsies!

A Mizner Epigram

Much has been written of the wit and adventures of Wilson Mizner, a Hollywood brilliant. The one-time pride of Broadway was one of the first white men to invade the Klondike. Another was Tex Rickard. When they reached Nome with the other gold rushers, Mizner immediately opened a saloon and gambling emporium. Over the bar was this typical Mizner ethic: "Boost a booster. Knock a knocker and Cheat a chump!"

Nightmare

Phrase for phrase.
Kiss for kiss;
That was another night—
Not this.

"Ever and ever I'll be true;"
That was another girl—
Not you.

"Love like ours
Will never die;"
That was another lad—
Not I! —J. P.

The Morning Mail

"Dear Walter Barrymore Winchell, devotedly writes Al Wohlman, of the Club Richman. "I saw your comment on my being at the track Saturday and beating them for all I had. As a matter of fact, I picked five winners and would have picked the sixth, had I any more money."

Swifty

And the racetrack tout's observation: "You may linger, but you're bound to go!" reminds another Wrong Guesser that you might have a chance at the race track if the horses you bet on went as fast as your coin.

If you need help with your spring housecleaning, see the "Situations Wanted" ads in the Classified Section.

Plays Crook

DENNIS KING BRINGS HIS VAGABOND TO WARNER

By MILDRED FILLMORE

"The Vagabond King" of the stage has reached the screen with all the technicolor hues and elaborateness that the movie-makers have at their disposal. It opened yesterday in the Warner.

The story, as most everyone knows, is all about that rascal-poet, Francois Villon, who gets a chance at being king of France. Dennis King is in the title role, the same part he essayed on the stage.

He does well enough, too. But there is a noticeable conflict between his singing voice and the recording apparatus. Noticeable, too, is that some of his attempts at the dramatic aren't so effective.

O. P. Heggie contributes keen acting in the role of Louis XI, the "goofy" king. He toys with the hero like a cat with a mouse. But, unlike most mice, this hero slips to freedom in the end. Within a few feet of elevated gallows, he goes into that clinch which is the very life and breath of the movie industry.

Jeanette MacDonald portrays the heroine—a princess. And attractive, she is. But, at that, the hero is no mean "hooker" himself after the royal barber mows off his beard.

There are numerous musical numbers, including "Song of the Vagabond" and "Only a Rose," in the film. There are large ensembles. Hundreds of persons are in the cast. These are spread out over massive palace halls and whatnot.

As a picture "The Vagabond King" is a technicolor spectacle.

(3) This is a contest that will test the skill of the readers of the Sun-Telegraph as to their knowledge of the names of the players of the Pittsburgh club.

(4) There will be a new PIRATEPUZ every day and daily prizes for the correct and most nearly correct answers will be awarded as follows:

1st Prize, $10.00 in Cash | 2nd Prize, $5.00 in Cash | 3rd Prize, $2.50 in Cash
Next 25 Prizes—Each a Grandstand General Admission ticket to the Pirates' game, good any day during the season.

The files of this newspaper are available at the Sun-Telegraph Branch Office, Fifth Avenue and Market Street, where any person can copy or trace the puzzle.

(6) All answers must be addressed to the PIRATEPUZ Editor, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, and must be postmarked not later than midnight of the day following the publication of the PIRATEPUZ for which the answer is submitted. Contestants are requested to place the number of the puzzle on the low outside left-hand corner of the envelope.

(7) Winner will be announced within one week after the publication of the PIRATEPUZ.

FURNISH BRICK FOR POWER PLANTS

Harbison-Walker Makes Product for Service in All Types of Furnace

One of the leading power plant trade journals recently published in its columns a list of 23 outstanding power plant developments during the past year. The list includes 13 central stations and 10 industrial power plants.

As an evidence of the faith of the users of refractories in Harbison-Walker products it is interesting to note that of the entire quantity of first quality fire clay brick used in the construction of the boiler settings in these outstanding installations, Harbison-Walker furnished over 78 per cent. In 17 of the 23 plants Harbison-Walker brick was used 100 per cent. In three plants the business was shared with competitors.

THIRTY PLANTS

In the list is the Hell Gate Station of the New York Edison Company, where two new power units are being installed. These units will each have a steaming capacity of 800,000 pounds of steam per hour, not exceeded by any other single unit in the world. The list also includes other representative super-power stations and industrial power plants extending from New York to San Francisco and from the Great Lakes to the Gulf. There is a Harbison-Walker brand of brick to meet every refractories need.

Thirty modern plants with a capacity of over 1,500,000 nine-in equivalent per day are regularly producing standard nine-inch brick and sizes as well as special shapes varying from the comparatively simple to the most complex forms. These refractories are shipped to all parts of the world for service in all types of industrial furnaces from the smallest to the largest blast furnaces and open hearths.

LARGEST MAKER

For many years Harbison-Walker Refractories Company has been the world's largest producer of refractories and has also enjoyed leadership as regards the quality of its products. Ever ready to abandon older for newer methods, Harbison-Walker has forged steadily ahead under a policy of continuous modernization. No expense has been spared in maintaining operations at maximum efficiency consistent with the production of refractories of the most excellent quality and of the highest attainable degree of uniformity and workmanship.

SALES AGENCY AIDS GLASS

Overshadowing all else among this week's developments in the flat glass industry was announcement of the formation of a window glass sales agency, according to American Glass Review. For some weeks, as was well known throughout the trade, negotiations for the launching of a selling organization had been under way, but not until April 30 was it officially announced that plans had been completed.

The need for some such constructive move in the window glass industry has long been recognized by leading factors. During the past year in particular the necessity for co-ordinated sales effort on the part of manufacturers had been quite apparent. Demand for some months has been below normal and, with the market unstable during much of that time, the situation has presented a most perplexing problem.

Formation of this new organization, under the able guidance of sales executives who have the respect and confidence of the entire trade, is probably the most important marketing development of recent years in the window glass industry. That it will be a potent factor in the direction of improved marketing trends seems certain.

Rubber Supplies Ample; Stocks Continue Gain

Available supplies of rubber are ample if not burdensome, with stocks in the United States not merely well above a year ago but actually reaching record proportions, says Brookmire Economic Service, Inc. Total world stocks continue to mount. Evidently the need exists for rather prolonged curtailment of production, especially since the consuming outlook is clouded. Since automobile production is probably now at its peak for the year, original equipment demand for tires will remain well below the 1929 rate. Replacement demand lags behind expectations because tires last longer and reduced income is resulting in curtailment of consumers' expenditures. The weight of supply is likely to drive prices lower until such time as the consuming outlook improves, hence it appears too early to relax the cautious buying policy.

EASY MONEY AIDS TRADE

NEW YORK, May 3.—The easy money policy instituted six months ago by the Federal Reserve System, has not yet had its full effect in stimulating business, according to a statement made last night by Norman Merriman, economist for Ungerleider Financial Corporation, in an address delivered before the Business Policy Forum of the School of Business Administration of the College of the City of New York.

While this easy money policy has been an undoubted aid in the stimulating of certain types of business, particularly the construction of public works and utilities, Mr. Merriman stated that it was his opinion that in another six months the favorable effect of this policy upon general business activity would be much more important than it has been up to date.

That large traders who made huge profits in selling short last fall have been taking the short side again in the current reaction.

That the increase of more than $400,000,000 in member loans in April is due in part to loans against undigested issue of bonds.

That American Locomotive may cut its present $8 annual dividend rate in half.

LESS FAILURES IN APRIL

The total number of failures reported to Bradstreet's Journal for April was the smallest recorded for any month since December, which may be partly explained by its being a short month, but there were fewer, nevertheless, than in February, itself a short month and what is additionally interesting, the percentage of increase in April over the like month a year ago was considerably smaller than in either of the two preceding months. As regards liabilities the total was larger than in either March or February, but was less than in January, although more than double the total in April of last year.

There were 1,976 failures with $80,768,032 of liabilities reported to Bradstreet's Journal for April, a decrease of 5.5 per cent. from March and of 8 per cent from February, which indicates some subsidence in the yearend cleaning movement from the larger totals of earlier months. Compared with April a year ago failures show an increase of 13.8 per cent over the like month a year ago, this comparing with increases of 22.8 per cent in March and of 23 per cent in February, as compared with similar months a year ago. The April total, however, constitutes a new high record total for that month individually.

CHECK PLOTS IN DOMINICA

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic, May 3.—(AP.)—The Dominican government has begun inspecting all foreign cables sent between February 22 and April 14.

Roberto Despradel, state attorney, said this was done to determine whether any Dominicans had been urging intervention by the United States "or some other foreign power" in the republic's political affairs.

The attention of Charles B. Curtis, American minister, was called to this inspection by J. S. Whaley, manager of the All-America cables here, who believes it contrary to constitutional guarantees as to the privacy of correspondence.

Under Dominican law, mere communication with foreign powers about intervention is punishable as treason.

Bankers' See Late Recovery in Business

NEW YORK, May 3.—Up to this time there has been little improvement in any major line of industry and the feeling is becoming more general that substantial and sustained recovery in business and in corporation profits is unlikely to materialize before late summer or autumn, West & Co., investment bankers, says in the current issue of their fortnightly Financial Review.

The copper producers having reduced prices materially, there is now talk of reduction in steel prices, according to the publication. That this has been going on gradually for weeks is, however, common knowledge and it is to be doubted if any concerted action is taken by the larger companies with an announcement of a general reduction all along the line. The situation is, in many respects, dissimilar to the position of the copper industry—there is a widely varied line of products, some of which are in keen demand even at present and others for which inquiry is almost absent.

ROTH COMPANY OFFERS PLAN

One of the oldest investment houses in the city is offering to its clients a partial payment plan in the outright purchase of safe, conservative stocks listed on the exchanges of leading cities. This plan plan is not to be confused with margin speculation but is offered to the customers of J. M. Roth and Son, 1511 First National Bank Building, when the client wishes to accumulate a certain amount regularly in the form of proven investments.

The plan followed by the Roth Company is the outright purchase for the client of the stock by the company. Upon a down payment of 25 per cent of the quoted price the Roth firm delivers to the customer the stock. The balance of the amount due can be paid in 12 to 18 equal monthly installments. The customer receives all dividends on the stock while paying the balance due on the purchase.

Diversity of investment is also offered by the Roth firm. This company deals in all the leading stocks and offers its clients experience gained in 45 years of financial undertakings. Stocks which are suited to one investor would not be logical for another and it is the purpose of the Roth firm to assist its customers in the choosing of investments which are particularly adapted to their investment problems.

ROLLING MILLS NET DOWN

NEW YORK, May 3.—Forthcoming report of American Rolling Mills Company for quarter ended March 31, is expected to show net profits of approximately $700,000 after all charges and taxes equal after preferred dividends to around 48 cents a share on 1,428,623 common shares. Due to fact that company published no corresponding statement in 1929, no comparison with first quarter results for that year is available, but for six months to June 30, 1929, net income was $4,516,181, or $3.14 a common share on basis of present capital structure.

Contraction displayed by company's earnings thus far this year seems to indicate that, with exception of minor improvement from time to time, general business of American Rolling Mills has failed to show any material change from recession that set in slightly prior to stock market slump of last October, particularly with respect to automotive industry which supplies company with the bulk of its demand.

Superior Oil Sells Stock to Syndicate

CIVIC BEAUTY FACTOR IN INDUSTRY

Cleanliness Advocated As Cheapest Way of Making City Known

By EDWARD G. LANG, Director of the Department of Public Works.

For public consideration, I am presenting a resume of the activities of the Bureau of Highways and Sewers and in so doing, I am summarizing the various functions and outlining what I consider one of the vital factors in the municipal government for maintenance of health, wealth and beautification of our glorious municipality.

Street cleaning is one of the important items with which this bureau has to deal. The average citizen looks upon street cleaning as a matter of course and expects that the streets be kept clean and tidy, but recognition of this fact is often lost sight of.

AIDS BUSINESS

The people themselves are a powerful force to help accomplish this. If they would avoid acts of commission in street littering our everyday work of cleaning streets and sewers means the removal of a menace to health that is very obvious. Clean streets, beautiful streets and sewers kept in a sanitary condition are an asset and means health to the entire community, to homes and to business. The old saying of the Greek philosopher that the aim should be to keep a clean street clean and not clean a dirty street, holds as good today as when it was uttered.

Street conditions are a powerful influence in forming the stranger's impression of the sanitary and efficient methods of the administration and is the lowest cost advertisement in reach. Cleanliness in the municipality is an economic factor because health, beauty and business are increased by cleanliness and cleanliness in itself serves more than the cost expended. Clean streets cannot but help create a favorable impression not only on the visitor but on our own citizens. This in turn, without doubt, is reflected on the worker and his work during the day. The co-operation of landlords and tenants particularly in the congested sections of the city by mutual understanding and proper sanitary efforts can help keep the streets and alleyways free from rubbish and filth, all of which is important to a cleaner and better city.

PUBLICITY HELPS

During the past year and all of the present year, we have made a special effort to keep the downtown streets free from paper and other accumulations which litter them between Saturday and Monday. It is, indeed, surprising the amount of litter that accumulates during this period.

Publicity relative to street cleaning has been given much prominence by the administration and through the co-operation of our newspapers, but we, in the final analysis, must rely in the main on an effort to curb indiscriminate littering which, as a general rule, is a thoughtless procedure.

BARREL KILLING TRIAL SPEEDED

Seeking an early trial for Philip Fazio, alleged racketeer of Clairton, who Thursday was held by a coroner's jury for the death of William Gregory, 23, District Attorney Andrew T. Park has appointed Assistant Prosecutor Earl Jackson to handle the case when it is presented to the grand jury next Wednesday. Gregory's headless body was found April 1 in a barrel in Penn township.

If an indictment is returned against Fazio, as is expected by the district attorney's office, the trial will be set for the early part of June, Park stated. County Detectives Frank Ritz, Samuel Whisner, Thomas Calig and Frank Malone, the sleuths who investigated the case, today are expected to go over their evidence with Jackson.

Pittsburgh District Holds Rate as Chicago and Buffalo Turn Downward

By B. E. V. LUTY.

The general rate of steel ingot production turned slightly downward this week, after four successive weeks of small increases. Chicago, Buffalo and the east have all decreased a trifle, while the Pittsburgh district maintains its rate and seems well fortified to continue doing so for several weeks at least. The top rate of steel ingot production was fully 80 per cent of capacity, this week's loss being one or two points.

The decrease may be taken as the beginning of the usual seasonal decrease coming a month later than the regular time in normal years. The lateness of the decrease may perhaps be ascribed to buyers being particularly conservative and postponing action. A separate case is presented by automobiles, in which peak production has come on an average in the second half of April and steel ingot production in that connection would occur two to four weeks earlier. This year automobile production has been quite light and all accounts indicate that it continues to increase, with prospects of this month's production exceeding April.

SEASONAL DROP SMALL

While seasonal decrease in total steel production, to a low July, has been the regular thing there has been no uniformity as to the amount of decrease. The seasonal precedent is clear as to character but does not indicate quantity. For various reasons it appears probable that seasonal decrease this year will be relatively small.

Without the guidance of precedent as to seasonal decline one might easily conclude that the prospects are to fully sustained steel production if not an increase, but sometimes in the past there has been a similar appearance yet production did decline, beginning to increase again in August.

STRUCTURAL ORDERS

Various consuming lines present a favorable prospect, as just noted in the case of the automobile industry. Fabricated structural steel lettings have been running somewhat lighter since the first of the year than last year or year before, but the shops entered the year with a large order book, which has been only slightly impaired, and one might possibly expect heavier shipments for a time than recently, on account of the season of year.

Although freight car buying has been very light in the last few weeks it will be easy to maintain the rate of freight car building for several months because the recent rate has been rather a low one.

WORK ON PARK STARTED

Construction work on Allegheny County Memorial Park, Pittsburgh's finest, most modern burial estate, is progressing rapidly. Excavation for the mirror-pool, which is to be located within the front entrance, has been started. This mirror-pool with the surrounding drives and court is patterned after the famous pool in the Boboli Gardens at Florence, Italy. It will be one of the beauty spots of the park, and in area is almost as large as an entire city square.

The contract for the construction of Memorial Park, under which the firm of Freeland, McHale and Patten, Inc., are now working, is said to be the largest single contract for landscaping ever let in this part of the country. More than one million dollars is being expended for this work. In addition to this plans call for the expenditure of a half million dollars for buildings. Attendants are at the property Sunday and every day to explain this great development program to visitors. The property is located in McCandless Township, about 10 miles north of downtown.

Many hands make light work. Employ experienced help for your spring house cleaning. It's a real saving in the end.

Hotel Chief

EUGENE C. EPPLEY

EPPLEY CAREER OUTLINED

The president of the William Penn Hotel, Eugene C. Eppley, is the largest individual hotel operator in the world and is rated as one of the "Big Four" of the hotel industry in an article entitled "Tavern Tycoons," by Charles B. Bowne, in the current issue of the American Motorist. Mr. Eppley operates 23 hotels between Pittsburgh and the Pacific coast.

While a man in his early forties, says the article, Mr. Eppley's personal characteristics — industry, energy, enthusiasm, leadership and organizing ability—have made his success perhaps more conspicuous than any other hotel operator in the past few years. A graduate of Culver Military Academy and of Stanford University, Gene Eppley had his first hotel experience in Akron, O. From there he went westward and his first big hotel was the Fontenelle in Omaha, which is now the headquarters of the chain, although he spends a considerable part of his time at the William Penn in Pittsburgh, which is one of the more recent units to be taken into the Eppley chain. As a hotel man, Mr. Eppley has few superiors, if any, in the knowledge of all branches of the hotel business, for he got his start in the more menial positions in hotels. In the development of his chain he has made it a particular point to be active in the civic and social life of each community in which he operates, with the result that the Eppley hotels are considered more as home-town hotels than units of a national chain. Mr. Eppley represents the progressive type of operator and his hotels have been distinguished for their atmosphere of hospitality and character of service.

Lower Prices May Hurt Steel Earnings

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE OUTLOOK FOR EARNINGS of steel companies for the second quarter and the balance of the year has been made increasingly uncertain by the continued weakness in prices. With shading of quotations taking place in pratcically all types of finished products it is difficult to make any accurate review of the present situation. Published quotations in many cases have little relationship to the prices at which desirable orders are being taken.

As near as can be judged steel prices are from $4 to $5 a ton below the levels prevailing a year ago.

The steel companies reported reduced earnings for the first quarter, but did fairly well in view of the curtailed production and the lower prices. It seems apparent that the average return per ton of steel made will be lower in the second quarter than in the first. April showed little change in production from March. The volume of current orders indicates that May will be about equal to April in output. In view of this there is little probability of second quarter earnings exceeding those of the first quarter for most producers.

Expect Increased Demand

THE TRADE IS CONFIDENT that increased demand for steel will be apparent in the latter part of the year. This is a favorable indication for earnings in the third and fourth quarters. Any revival in general business conditions is quickly reflected in steel mill operations. Well filled operating schedules make steel men willing to stand firmly on prices, but all the previous history of the industry has shown that it takes a long time to put a price advance into effect.

The custom of the industry has been to allow consumers to place contracts for their requirements for the next quarter at the old price levels before the new quotations are put into force. Higher prices for steel are not likely to help earnings statements until the third or possibly the fourth quarter. All the ground lost since last summer may not be regained until an even later period.

Production Not Low

WITH AN OUTPUT at 80 per cent of capacity the steel trade cannot be said to be operating at a particularly low rate. If production should continue for a full year at the present level the total output would be greater than in any previous year except 1928 and 1929.

In a vain effort to maintain operating schedules at the level established in a record year some of the mills have so undermined the price structure that a long period of time must pass for the industry to fully recover. Price cutting in an effort to stimulate production in the long run defeats its own ends. It forces similar shading by other operators and a general downward revision of all quotations. It is a well-known fact that purchasing agents buy only what they have to have for immediate requirements on a falling market.

Operating Economies

THE ENTIRE DEVELOPMENT of the steel industry has been a story of constantly increasing operating efficiency. The production departments have each year reduced the cost of steel. One steel man recently said, "The consumers are entitled to share in this, but the short sighted sales policies of many companies have tended to throw away the major share of economies which have been obtained at the expense of enormous plant improvement programs."

NEW INCOME TAX RULING

A new income tax ruling has just been announced by the Tax Department that will make it possible for Wall Street traders to save tremendous sums in income taxes according to J. S. Seidman, tax expert of Seidman & Seidman, certified public accountants. Under the ruling a person who owns stock on which he can realize market appreciation can, instead of selling his stock directly and having to report a profit, go short the same stock, and by continuing the long and short position indefinitely, avoid the tax.

The decision is of incalculable importance to security traders, Mr. Seidman explained, for it makes possible really getting the profits, for all practical purposes, without at the same time having to pay the income tax. In the case that gave rise to the ruling, the taxpayer bought some stock in June of one year and put the stock in his vault. The market price of the stock went up and in November he went short the same amount of stock, and had the broker record the short sale in a separate short account. It was only in the next year that he delivered the stock out of the vault to cover the short sale. The question was whether the profit to be reported in the year when the short sale was made and the taxpayer's position effectively balanced out, or whether it was only in the later year when the taxpayer went through the form of closing out his long and short position.

TRADE VOLUME DECLINES

WASHINGTON, May 3.—According to the weekly statement of the Department of Commerce for the week ended April 26 the volume of business as indicated by check payments, was lower than for last week and also lower than for the same week in 1929. Operations in steel plants during the latest reported week were higher than for the previous week but less than a year ago. Production of bituminous coal was nearly 2 per cent less than last week and 6 per cent below what it was a year ago. Petroleum production remained the same as the previous week but was 4 per cent lower than in 1929. The value of building contracts declined from last week and was much below a year ago.

The general index of wholesale prices was slightly below that for a week ago and nearly 7 per cent lower than for 1929. Composite iron and steel price remained practically the same as last week and was 7 per cent lower than a year ago.

TRADE BELOW NORMAL

NEW YORK, May 3.—Even under belated spring sunshine, the business thermometer of the country is lagging along more than 5 per cent below normal for the season and the year, without definite change for the better, says Business Week in its report covering the week ending today.

Last year this time it was reading over 110 in the shade, but those were unseasonably and abnormally hot times and led to lots of cases of sunstroke before summer was over. The trend during the first 10 weeks has been only slightly and irregularly upward. The season of spring stimulus is passing rapidly and most indicators are barely holding their level. Business is not getting back to normal as fast as some folks forecast, but by long-range reasonable and seasonable standards it isn't so bad.

Budd Manufacturing April Output Gains

PHILADELPHIA, May 3.—The E. G. Budd Manufacturing Company reports a marked increase for April in amount of steel fabricated in its Philadelphia plant into automobile bodies and body parts. April figures exceed those of March and figures for both March and April exceed the monthly average for 1929.

April consumption for the company amounted to 14,081 tons, against 12,333 tons in March.

IMPROVEMENT IN RETAIL TRADE

More Reasonable Weather Stimulates Demand for Spring Wearing Apparel

Retail trade has shown a moderate improvement this week, with seasonable temperature stimulating a demand for spring merchandise. Jobbers also report a slightly better demand for drygoods, wearing apparel and millinery, although trade still continues below normal.

Demand for shoes continues rather slow with prices showing a downward tendency, and some grades of leather have also been selling at lower prices. Lumber and other building materials are moving more freely, although the general volume of sales is below that of a year ago. There is a fair demand for groceries and provisions with price quotations below the average for a number of years. Automobile distributors report some increase in sales, although the total volume is believed to be about 20 per cent lower than a year ago.

GLASS DEMAND FAIR

Demand for electrical equipment continues very fair and manufacturers are operating at a rather high rate. Not much improvement is noted in demand for sanitary and radiator equipment, operations continuing at a lower rate than last year.

Demand for plate glass, while showing a slight improvement, still materially below the record demand of a year ago. Window glass still continues to move slowly, although a gradual improvement is anticipated.

COAL OUTPUT LOWER

Production of bituminous coal is somewhat lower than it was with the total tonnage now running slightly above 8,000,000 tons per week, and demand shows no material improvement. Western Pennsylvania run-of-mine coal are quoted per net ton at mines as follows: Steam coal, $1.25 to $1.75; gas coal, $1.55 to $1.75; coking coal, $1.50 to $1.75; steam slack, 80c to 90c; and gas slack, $1.00 to $1.10.

COLLECTIONS

4TH DISTRICT RECOVERING

CLEVELAND, O., May 3.—(AP.)—Slow recovery from the recent decline in business in the Fourth Federal Reserve Bank District which includes Western Pennsylvania, was revealed today in the bank's business monthly business review.

During the first quarter in this district, the review stated, most production figures have shown an expansion from month to month, but the March records, the latest complete figures available, in all case except building show that the growth during the first quarter of the year from the low point of December was no greater and in some cases even less than seasonal.

The second quarter appears to have opened in a slightly more favorable manner and industrialists in many parts of the district state that the trend of general business is now definitely upward, though the rate of improvement is still quite slow.

Expanding industrial activity and commencement of outdoor work such as construction, farming and road building brought about a better employment condition at the start of the second quarter.

Success of German Bonds In Doubt Despite Bank Rate Cuts

By B. C. FORBES.

VERY SPECTACULARLY the monetary stage is being set for the appearance of the first offering of German reparation bonds. Without word or shadow of warning, France lowered its bank rate to 2½ per cent, the Bank of England named 3 per cent and the New York Reserve Bank 3 per cent, all reductions of one-half of 1 per cent. These rates are astoundingly, even historically, low.

This extremely drastic action suggests that the world's bankers feel that everything conceivable must be done to grease the way for the reparation bonds. Indeed, the interpretation is permissible that doubts are harbored in high places as to the marketability of these war-bred obligations.

What are the prospects for the bonds in this country?

Doubtless the offering syndicate, which unquestionably will be ultra-influential, will promptly and triumphantly announce that the whole issue was snapped up the hour it was offered. That is an ancient form of polite financial fiction. When such an announcement is made—and it nearly always is made—all it really means is that the underwriters and their associates have allotted the obligations not to investors but to dealers, to houses that buy only to sell. J. P. Morgan & Co can be depended upon to take care handsomely of this phase of the epochal transaction.

My guess is that the rank and file of investors will not rush in to buy these German reparation bonds. The public has the idea that somehow or other these bonds are shot through with politics. Also there is a widespread notion that they represent the spoils of victory over Germany and that some day the whole Young Plan may be upset, to the discomfiture of holders of German reparation bonds.

There is, too, a growing preference in this country for American securities. The average American has infinitely more faith in his own country than in any other country. He knows that prosperity is more common here than in any other land. He is aware that enormous profits have been reaped by those who have invested in sound American securities, especially common stocks, and notwithstanding the recent travic experience, he still has faith that American securities are the most attractive.

The yield on these reparation bonds will have to be unusually generous in order to interest ordinary investors. Moreover, intelligent educational efforts will have to be put forth between now and the offering date. The public needs to be told very clearly and convincingly why it should put its money into these obligations rather than into choice American investments.

Europeans originally indulged in the fond hope that the United States could be made the dumping ground for billions and billions of reparation bonds. Europe has since been disillusioned, at least partly. Some of our foremost banking houses feel that they and this country have a responsibility towards Europe and its financial rehabilitation. Therefore, they are ready to do their part. But the ordinary American investor has no such feeling of responsibility.

It is up to our banking gentlemen to leave no stone unturned to insure that by the time the bonds appear they will be selling ex-ignorance and ex-prejudice.

A CHICAGO ELECTRICIAN, commenting on the recent column on unions and workers, complains:

"For several years I have been trying to join the electricians' union. When I apply for a position I am told to get a union card. When I asked the union for a card, I was told to get a job first. Once I reported to the Illinois Federation of Labor. They sent me back to the union, where I was told I must know some 'inside' man. In union parlance, it means graft. The union doesn't gain anything by excluding me because I do all the electrical work I can get and for less money."

Perhaps some union official may be in a position to deny that anything of this kind goes on. Obviously, if a union card is necessary to get a job and the union won't issue a card until a man first gets a job, it isn't astonishing that dissatisfaction should exist. What are the facts?

PRESIDENT P. D. WAGONER, of Underwood Elliott-Fisher, had his health toasted at a banquet in London of the company's British representatives and, although he was in his office in New York, he immediately responded with a 10 minutes' talk, which was clearly heard by the gathering. Could this be described as the "longest" toast in all history?

Verily, distance is being annihilated.

DON'T ASSUME that the downward movement in stock won't end.

Peanut in Lung, Baby Goes to Hospital

Because Elvin Murphy, aged 20 months, has a weakness for peanuts, he is in the Eye and Ear Hospital today slowly recovering from a serious attack of pneumonia.

Elvin's case is a freakish one. Four weeks ago he spied a dish of salted peanuts lying on the table in his Frank (Pa.) home. Elvin wanted the peanuts and lots of them, so he climbed upon a chair, dived his hands into the dish and stuffed his mouth with his favorite food.

His mother attempted to dislodge the nuts from the child's mouth, but he only set his jaws and swallowed. Two weeks later Elvin took cold. The doctor did his best, but Elvin failed to recover. His father then told the doctor of the peanuts and an X-ray picture was taken, revealing a peanut in Elvin's lung.

By the time he was rushed to the hospital, where the peanut was removed, Elvin had developed pneumonia.

Stock Exchange Topics

Reaction in Proportion To Gain Experienced By Stocks.

The reaction which has overtaken the stock market this week, while it has been severe, has not been out of proportion to the advance which preceded it. Taking the index of 90 stocks compiled by Standard Statistics Company, Inc., it is shown that on its recovery from the November lows the market enjoyed a steady rise of some 65½ points to the peak of April 10 last. Since then it has been in the throes of a rather acute shakeout, yet at the closing Thursday the average of 90 stocks was down only 12½ points from the peak, showing that only about one-fifth of the improvement from the November lows has been canceled.

Several of the larger investment trusts were reported yesterday to have been heavy sellers of stocks since the beginning of the week. Selling from such sources was in a large way responsible for the acute weakness which characterized the leading industrial shares and many of the more active specialties. Liquidation from these sources, however, is now believed to have been completed. As a matter of fact it was intimated that some of the larger interests who had been on the selling side earlier in the week were picking up new lines of stocks around the low levels of the sessions.

While other rail stocks have been on the decline, Pennsylvania has held fairly steady. Like the other carriers of the country there was a falling off in revenue experienced by Pennsylvania in the early months of this year, but this was partially offset by making proportionate reduction in maintenance expenditures. Even on the reduced revenue basis the stock is in a position to sell higher before establishing a level not entirely justified by earnings. Pennsylvania has an enviable dividend record among the railroad issues.

In some quarters the belief is held that National Cash Register will make a better showing in the second three months than was possible in the initial quarter. A decided improvement in general business conditions will be reflected in the earnings of National Cash Register during the months to come and those who are confident that business will not long remain in the doldrums are reported to be adding to their holdings of this issue.

Another company said to be doing at least as well as last year is Colgate-Palmolive-Peet. The stock has only been on the big board for three or four months and gossip is to the effect that when market conditions are righted the stock will have a more active sponsorship. The present organization is less than two years old and within a short time the full benefits of the merger will likely be reflected in earnings. There are only 144,000 preferred shares and 2,000,000 common shares outstanding. It is said that the floating supply of the latter is relatively small.

Again it is pointed out that Woolworth invariably emerges from times of business reaction in a stronger position than ever before and for this reason the stock appears attractive to some investors at these levels. Directors are liberal in their treatment of stockholders, giving ample returns in the form of cash and stock dividends. Company did a splendid Easter business and it is expected that sales report shortly to be released for the first four months will show a volume of business done in excess of the same period of 1929.

Auto Safety Drive For Aged Planned

The safety educational efforts of the Better Traffic Committee will in the future be directed largely toward the growing number of accidents in which adults of more than 55 years of age are involved, it was decided at a meeting of the committee yesterday. According to Walter Rosenbaum, chairman of the educational sub-committee, men and women over 55 years of age are involved in accidents here oftener than children.

Deputy, Shot, Kills Alleged Moonshiner

MARION, Va., May 3.—(AP.)—George Gullion, 35, Smyth County deputy sheriff, shot and killed Charles Gullion, 50, said by officers to be a moonshiner, after the latter had wounded the deputy. The officer was in a critical condition with a bullet wound in his stomach. The two men, though bearing the same name, are not related.

Dozen Led From Blazing Building

Police and firemen led a dozen Negroes, most of them children, to safety last night when fire broke out in a two-story frame dwelling at 2120 Falcon way. The blaze, of an undetermined cause, destroyed the contents of the first floor occupied by Alonzo Brailer, and the upper tenanted by Leo Spears.

Clairton Rum Raid Yields Still, Mash

A raid on the home of Tony Paglucci, 65, of 705 High street, Clairton, netted prohibition agents a 75-gallon still and 2,100 gallons of mash yesterday, they reported. Paglucci was released on his own recognizance.

COLORADO FUEL IMPROVEMENT SEASONAL

Large Rail Orders Aided in Satisfactory Showing for First Three Months.

NEW YORK, May 3.—Colorado Fuel and Iron Company's first quarter earnings statement was highly gratifying, but seasonal business played an important part in the showing and the year's results cannot be expected to measure up to the rate of the first three months. Net profit after charges, but before federal taxes, was $1,294,157 for the quarter, compared with $939,982 in the first 1929 quarter. Company calculates common share earnings after taxes at $3.27 for the 340,505 shares, against $2.34 in the like quarter of 1929.

Several large rail orders were booked late in 1929 and early this year, and much of this business was shipped during the first quarter. Railroads have completed the major portion of their rail orders and are not scheduled to enter the market actively again until fall. In the late summer Colorado Fuel shuts down its rail mill and earnings consequently are at a low ebb in the third quarter.

OUTPUT DIVERSIFIED

Although the company's line of steel products is more diversified than a few years ago, rail business still is the principal revenue producer. Ordinarily the rail mill is shut down from two to five months during the middle of the year. Annual results, therefore, are dependent largely on first and fourth quarter earnings and the present year's showing will be more clearly defined when railroads enter the market again.

Management of Colorado Fuel in recent years has had several difficulties to overcome in connection with marketing of coal as well as steel products. Much work has been done to improve the company's position in both fields.

DUSTLESS COAL

The company is now marketing coal treated by an exclusive chemical process which eliminates soot and makes it dustless and clinkerless. Undoubtedly this was perfected to meet the competition from gas and it should give the company some business which otherwise would not be obtained. An additional 50 cents a ton is charged for coal so treated.

Operating costs of the company have been lowered in recent years and the management is continuing a program of improvement of properties. This will be financed from earnings. The common stock was placed on a $2 annual basis at the beginning of this year, with a quarterly disbursement of 50 cents, the first dividend since 1921. Earnings for 1929 were $2,350,048, after charges, or $6.43 a share for the common.

Gun Totin' Gets Judge's O. K. In This Case

CHICAGO, May 3.—(AP.)—Arraigned in court charged with carrying concealed weapons, James and Joseph Velosi were not only freed but also received their guns back again.

Judge Frank M. Padden indicated that he felt they needed to carry weapons, and here is why:

Their butcher shop has been robbed twice; their home robbed once; their automobile stolen three times within a year. Moreover, Joseph killed a bandit in their shop a year ago, and since then they have received threatening letters.

SHEET AND TUBE STOCK TIED UP

NEW YORK, May 3.—(AP.)—The New York Stock Exchange yesterday was notified by the management of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company that the minority stock which opposed merger of Youngstown Sheet and Tube with Bethlehem Steel Corporation had been suspended from transfer.

The effect of the order was to render practically non-negotiable some 350,000 Youngstown Sheet and Tube shares held by Cyrus S. Eaton, Otis & Co. and other minority stockholders.

It was said in Wall Street circles that the order created a situation unique in corporate annals. Holders of the shares charged that not only would trading be hampered in the "dissenting stock," but that such shares would be affected if used for collateral. Traders expected that the stock exchange would seek an immediate readjustment for the relief of the stockholders affected.

The stoppage of transfer of dissenting stock followed demands of the objecting minority for a "fair cash value instead of Bethlehem stock," an alternative to which they were entitled under Ohio laws. To this demand Bethlehem Steel officials responded with an offer of $110 a share, a value considerably below the market price. The minority in turn asked $180 to $250 per share for their holdings.

CHRYSLER NET TAKES DROP

DETROIT, May 3.—The Chrysler Corporation reports for the March quarter net profit of $180,717 after interest, Federal taxes, etc., equal to four cents a share on 4,431,575 no par shares. Against net profit of $8,838,173 in the first quarter of 1929, or $2 a share on 4,411,990 shares.

Walter P. Chrysler, president said net operating profits for the 12 months ended March 31 were $13,244,712 which shows that notwithstanding the current recession in business the corporation during the past 12 months has earned its dividends, reduced its debt and substantially maintained its net current asset position.

Mr. Chrysler said: "conditions in the automobile industry are now more stabilized and the industry has probably turned the corner for the better."

Northern Merger Abandonment Likely

NEW YORK, May 3.—Attempts to consolidate the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railways will probably be abandoned. Announcement to this effect is likely to be made before the end of this month as many obstacles to the merger have arisen.

Principal proponents of the merger believe that it would be impracticable to attempt to force it through.

JEWEL TEA CO. NET PROFIT LARGER

Advantageous Operation in Coffee Market Lifts the Quarter's Earnings 45%

NEW YORK, May 3.—Earnings of the Jewel Tea Company for the initial quarter of the current year were about 45 per cent ahead of the corresponding period of 1929. This good showing was largely due to the foresight of the management in having meager coffee inventory at the time of the drastic break in the price of the commodity toward the latter part of 1929. About the middle of October pronounced weakness developed in the Brazilian coffee market as a result chiefly of the unsatisfactory financial condition of Brazil and the inability of planters to finance their operations, particularly the warehousing of unusually large stocks.

With only a small stock on hand at the time, Jewel was in a position to purchase its requirements at low figures. While the retail price moved downward in sympathy with the wholesale quotation it occurred somewhat later, thereby enabling Jewel to realize an unusually large profit margin on its sales.

PROFIT MARGIN UP

While it is not probable that the rate of profit gain in the first quarter will apply for the remainder of the year, present indications are that the company will have a successful 1930, despite the somewhat lower sales volume indicated by results reported so far this year. Considerable effort has been expended in the past several years in improving operating methods which has had the effect of causing the margin of profit on sales to show an increase in each of the past four years. Last year on sales of $16,844,110, Jewel showed a profit margin of 10.05 cents on the sales dollar. This compared with 9.55 cents on sales of $15,970,892 in 1928 and 8.68 cents on $14,532,336 sales in 1927.

MORE TRADE ROUTES

For the 12 weeks ended March 22 last, Jewel's sales totaled $1,284,868, representing a decline of $16,032, or 1.2 per cent from the corresponding period of 1929. However, despite the general uncertainty in business throughout the country, the company continues to build up its trade routes, now numbering 1,220 as compared with 1,147 at this time in 1929. Average routes operating during 1929 totaled 1,180 against 1,106 in 1928.

Last year Jewel reported net profit available for dividends of $1,691,302, equivalent to $6.04 a share on 280,000 no-par common shares. In the previous year net totaled $1,530,880, or $11.10 a share after preferred dividends on the then outstanding 120,000 shares.

Smith Optimistic On California Oil Outlook

LOS ANGELES, May 3.—Dr. George Otis Smith, head of United States Geological Survey, just before departing for Washington stated that the outlook for California oil industry in his opinion appears very good with operators having production control well in hand. There has been an improvement over this time last year in the entire industry and especially as regards Kettleman Hills, he stated. About this time last year California was threatened with a flood of oil from the prolific Kettleman Hills field, but this has been primarily arrested until 1931, at which time it is expected an operating agreement will permit a conservative and orderly development.

UNSIGNED TRIO ON INELIGIBLE LIST

THOUGH STORIES HAVE been published to the effect that Eddie Roush, Giant outfielder, and George Blaeholder, Brown pitcher, are the only remaining holdouts in the big baseball leagues, there is one other in that classification who has been generally overlooked. During the present Pittsburgh visit of the Boston Braves the familiar figure of Johnny Cooney, southpaw pitcher and occasional pinch-hitter, has been missing. The explanation is that Cooney is still a holdout.

Johnny Cooney.

Johnny pitched in some exhibition games for Bill McKechnie in St. Petersburg this spring and also on the way North, but refused to sign a contract at the terms offered and was left in Boston when the club went to New York to open the season. He has remained firm ever since in his refusal to sign, with the result that he is now on the ineligible list and the Braves are making their first Western trip without him. Manager McKechnie sent a message to Cooney on Thursday night advising him to reconsider and apply for reinstatement, but the pitcher has not yet shown any sign of a change of mind.

THE BOSTON HOLDOUT has been coming here regularly with the Braves ever since the fall of 1921, barring a period in 1922 when he was sent to the New Haven club for seasoning and again in 1927 when he was out of commission on account of a chipped bone in his pitching arm. On account of his hitting ability, Cooney was used a number of times as emergency first baseman.

Johnny is a brother of Jim Cooney, former shortstop for the Cardinals, Cubs and Phillies. Their father, baseball's original Jim Cooney, was the only major leaguer except Ed Walsh ever to send two sons to the big show after his own retirement. The father was an infielder for the Chicago Nationals in 1890, 1891 and 1892 when the famous Cap Anson was manager and first baseman of the club.

THE THREE REMAINING holdouts—Cooney, Roush and Blaeholder—are now on the ineligible list under baseball law, which provides that penalty for any player who fails to report to his club within 10 days after the opening of the championship season.

Before any of the three can return to organized ball he must apply for reinstatement to the president of his league, who will then certify the application and pass it along to Commissioner K. M. Landis for a final decision as to whether or not it shall be granted.

Eddie Roush.

BLAEHOLDER HAS MADE known the details of his case. He says that on March 3 he was offered a contract for $5,000, the same pay he received last year. He refused it and demanded $7,500. On March 15, he says, he received a second contract for $5,000 with the promise of a bonus of $1,000 if he won a certain number of games. The pitcher contends that a bonus is not a raise and he demands $7,500 with no reservations. He says he will give up baseball to accept a job with an oil company if his demands are not granted. Blaeholder won 14 games and lost 15 last year. He was looked upon by St. Louis fans as a steadily improving pitcher, and Manager Killefer had planned to use him as a regular starter.

PERHAPS YOU DIDN'T know that Pitcher John McGrew, of the Athletics, also had been a holdout. Possibly you were not even aware that Connie Mack had any such pitcher on his roster. McGrew has been a holdout just the same, refusing to come North with the A's and remaining at his home in Yoakum, Tex.

It's not every day that you hear of an untried rookie kicking away a chance to win a job on a probable pennant winning club and to pick off an extra world series check for five or six grand. Evidently that world series possibility finally dawned upon McGrew, for he signed his contract and at last reported in time to escape being declared ineligible. McGrew was in the Western League with Glenn Spencer, of the Pirates, last year, pitching for Omaha. He tied with Spencer for the league leadership in number of victories, with 24, but lost 10 games to Spencer's nine.

JESS PETTY has not shone very brilliantly as a starting pitcher this spring, failing to go the distance in either of the two games that he began, but he surely delivered as a finishing hurler yesterday.

It would be hard to imagine a tougher spot than that into which Petty stepped in the ninth inning in relieving Remy Kremer when the Braves had the bases full with none out and only one run needed to tie. But the veteran left-hander was equal to the contract. With a double play from home to first base on the first batter and a strikeout on the second Jess speedily pulled his team out of the hole, saved the game, and put the Pirates back in first place while the Giants were suffering their fourth straight defeat.

Jess Petty.

IT WAS QUITE the fastest and neatest bit of game saving in a pinch seen anywhere in the big league this year, and Petty deserved the hearty handshake and the pat on the back with which Manager Ens ran out to show his appreciation when the third man had been retired. It is to be hoped that Petty's arrival at form will prove lasting and that he will be able to show as a starter hereafter some approach to the effectiveness he displayed as a finisher yesterday.

THE RECORD of Everett Scott for continuous playing in the big show is safe for a long time to come. The only player who could be called a close rival was put out of the running yesterday, when Joe Sewell was prevented by illness from appearing at his post in the Cleveland lineup.

From June 20, 1916, to May 5, 1925, Scott never missed taking part in a game played by his club, establishing a record of 1,307 consecutive games. Sewell held a clean record from the fall of 1922 up to yesterday, but was stopped after he had played in 1,102 successive contests, falling 205 short of Scott's mark. The player now next in line in pursuit of the record is Lou Gehrig, of the Yankees, who has 756 consecutive games to his credit.

IF BOBBY JONES and his fellow countrymen are defeated in the Walker Cup matches at Sandwich on May 15 and 16, an annual international competition in which America has been victorious on all five previous occasions, the reverse may be due as largely to the wrong kind of home influence as to superior play on the part of the British team.

For days before they sailed for England this week, the American players, instead of getting the encouragement they should have received, had to listen to the wails of a lot of crepe hangers. They

STRONG FIELD IN ANNUAL EVENT

By JESS CARVER.

Launching furious attacks at every existing record, nearly 900 scholastic track and field stars, representing some 50 high schools of the tri-state district, began competition in the fourteenth annual Carnegie Tech Interscholastic track and field championships in the Tartan Bowl this mrning.

Despite sterling counter-attractions in the annual Ohio State Relays, the invitation meet at Wheeling, W. Va., and the West Virginia sectional school meet at Morgantown, the Tech carnival has drawn close to a record entry.

Star individual performers, led by Pusch, of Beaver; Stern, of Steubenville; Van Faussam, of East Palestine; Moore, of Beaver Falls; McMurdo, of Ellwood City; Spencer, of Fifth Avenue; Cutrona, Freedom; Markovich, Harding; Blackburn, Lisbon, O.; Pope, Verona; Fleming, Westinghouse, and Dunn, Ellwood City, promise the very best in record shattering attempts.

SCOTT HIGH FAVORED

Scott High, of Toledo, 1929 champions and on hand once again to make valiant defense of its laurels, is favored to retain the title, but must look for strenuous competition from another Ohio school, East Palestine. This latter institution won the annual Geneva Interscholastic point trophy last week, and boasts an exceptionally well balanced squad. South Brownsville, 1928 champions, Monongahela, New Castle, Ellwood City and Peabody lead the horde of Pittsburgh district teams seeking to bring the championship back to this state.

MURPHY LAID TO REST

YOUNGSTOWN, O., May 3. — Funeral services for Leo Murphy, Pitt football star who died Wednesday morning from a broken neck received in spring grid practice 11 days ago, were held from St. Brennan's Church here at 9:30 o'clock this morning. Interment was made in Calvary Cemetery.

Sixty members of the athletic department of the University of Pittsburgh, including the entire football coaching staff and all members of the 1929 Panther gridiron team, were among the hundreds who attended the funeral services. Captain-elect Eddie Baker and Joe Donchess, all-America end, were active pallbearers and Dr. John (Jock) Sutherland, head coach, and W. Don Harrison, director of athletics, were among the honorary pallbearers.

Approximately 100 local Pitt alumni also attended the services, and wreaths from both Pitt and the local Pitt alumni chapter were in the huge bank of floral pieces.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: TWO-HEADED WHALE—The two-headed whale caught off South Georgia, a whaling island group of the South Atlantic Ocean, is one of nature's strangest freaks. My picture is drawn from an original photo of this appalling monster. HIT A HOME RUN, RAN THE WRONG WAY AND WAS DECLARED OUT—In a game between Port Huron and Peoria, Dan O'Leary swung at the ball with such vigor that he fell down and was partially stunned. He became confused and ran around the diamond the wrong way, despite the cries of his teammates and the crowd, which he took to be cheers for him. Although the ball went over the fence, and the hit easily was good for a homer, he was declared out. SHAKESPEARE'S CONNECTION WITH THE FORTY-SIXTH PSALM—Psalm 46. Forty-sixth word from the first is "shake" and from the last is "spear." The last word is "refuse." "Selah" is not a word, but a musical mark indicating a pause in the recitation.

TOMORROW—THE ROCKING PAGODA.

POLOISTS CLASH TONIGHT

The riders of the One Hundred and Seventh Field Artillery will resume their quest for a polo triumph by meeting the Pittsburgh Polo Club trio tonight in the weekly game in the Hunt Armory, East End. Play will begin at 8:30 p. m.

The same lineup that fought such a good battle against the Three Hundred and Eighth Cavalry a week ago will face the Club team, Capt. Steimer will ride at No. 1, the dashing Tommy Ward at No. 2 and Lieut. Watson at No. 3.

The lineup of the Club team will not be known until game time.

Nick Altrock Says:

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Business is so bad in St. Louis they have to play double-headers on Sundays to get a decent crowd. If St. Louis had ball teams like Boston's they could use Grant's Tomb for the grandstand and never disturb the general. In Cincinnati, Dan Howley is hearing a little hissing and he can't blame it on the steam pipes, because they're turned off when you're at the foot of the league. They sure like to step on your bunions. Well they started night baseball at Des Moines last night and the first thing you know they'll be calling games on account of a fuse blowing out.

THE LOWDOWN ON THE BUGS

By THE BENCHWARMER.

Well, folks, we're back on top looking down at them Giants and Cubs and the other fellows, but I'll admit we had a close call in the ninth. Guess Jess Petty didn't turn in a pretty nifty trick when Jule hollered for him to hustle from the bullpen to the mound? I notice when a lot of baseball people get in jams they yell for lefthanders, but when everything is going along O. K. they tell us how daffy we are. Well, I hope I get as daffy as Babe Ruth and make eighty grand a year—that's all I got to say, and I told Jule this and a lot more stuff—in a kiddin' way, of course—when we was coming in from the field.

JULE PANS LEFTIES

Jule has been cracking wise about havin' too many lefthanders around, but there was one time when a southpaw looked like a lifeboat to some overboard Pirates. Jule says the lefthanders ought to be able to do somethins on the mound, because they sure look like lemons at the plate, and I told him not to forget that Ruth was a pitcher once and he can hit pretty fair.

Rabbit was around with a lot of funny stuff before the game. What I want to know is this: Was that little dude a better player 15 years ago than he is now? He can hit that ball to any field; he can play them batters like I never saw and the way he makes double plays knocked me plumb off the bench a couple of times.

Most of us kids have been taking in the sights with Socko, the clubhouse boy. Socko knows more places in this town than the mail-carriers and all we have to do is buy a few gallons of gas occasion-

PIRATES EVEN SERIES WITH BRAVES

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

The Pirates and Braves this afternoon will fight it out in the "rubber" game of their interesting series, and to give the contest a real dash of flavor, Skipper Bill McKechnie, of the invaders, will send Burleigh Grimes to the mound.

Grimes already has pitched and won his 1930 inaugural, despite a short period of training. Burleigh has had quite a lot of time to recuperate from that event and he probably will be on a pretty fair edge to face his former bunkmates.

WINNING RUN

Photo shows Dick Bartell, of the Pirates, scoring the winning run against the Braves in the fourth inning at Forbes Field yesterday on his triple and Hemsley's double with none out.

The former has not pitched since the season began, although he was carded for the curtain raiser in Cincinnati almost three weeks ago. A sore throat and fever took possession of the St. Louis Dutchman on the eve of the opener and he was unable to accept the envied role. Meine seems to have recovered his strength and skill.

SWETONIC CLEVER

Swetonic has pitched as cleverly as any pitcher in the league this year, although his efforts have been confined to the relief role. The Pirates can thank North Side Stephen for several of their victories.

Anyhow, the event of this afternoon should be appealing, with Grimes drawing many hundred into the Oakland Orchard. The series, in itself, has been a dandy, the Pirates evening it up yesterday when they squeezed through the victory on some de luxe relief pitching on the part of Jess Petty. The score was 3 to 2.

The Pirates carried a two-run lead into the ninth and Remy Kremer appeared to be in charge of the situation, but suddenly three singles were struck and a run went over. Rolly Hemsley failed to make a play on Maguire's fine bunt and the bases were filled.

BERGER NIPPED

Wally Berger, slugging outfielder of the Braves, who hit two home runs against the Pirates the day before, fanned twice yesterday. He hit two singles, but was nipped off first on one of these, in the fourth inning, when Pitcher Kremer threw to Suhr. Photo shows the puteut.

PETTY SAVES GAME

In the excitement, Skipper Bill sent Randolph Moore, a lefthand batter, to hit for Al Spohrer. Boss Ens halted the contest and signalled for the Silver Fox, who was warmed up. McKechnie then switched to Billy Rhiel, a right-hand batter, but Billy hit a bounder straight into Petty's hands and a double play resulted by way of the plate and first base, Jess followed through beautifully by fanning Earl Clark, hitting for Ben Cantwell.

Cantwell and Kremer staged a nice duel, with the Pirates leading most of the way. The Buccos scored in the first, the Braves effecting a tie in the third. The Pirates added another in their half of the inning and were leading by two runs after batting in the fourth. From that point to the ninth there was no runmaking. The triumph moved the Pirates ahead of the Giants in the scrap for the top position in the league.

REDS DEFEAT GIANTS; CUBS, ROBINS WIN

A'S, INDIANS, CHISOX AND NATS COP

Associated Press.

Feats of heavy hitting are becoming so common in the major leagues that few of them can excite much comment, while the few pitchers who are able to hold the sluggers in check are earning most of the season's glory.

For this reason, Jess Petty, of Pittsburgh, and Wesley Ferrell, of Cleveland, stand out as the leading performers in the eight games played in the two big leagues yesterday. Petty took the mound against the Boston Braves with none out and the bases full in the ninth inning yesterday and a slim 3-to-2 lead to protect. He did the job by fanning one batsman and forcing another to hit into a double play, starting it himself.

Ferrell, meeting the Boston Red Sox, gave up just three hits in seven innings before he yielded the job to Ken Holloway, but his team was trailing, 3 to 2. The Indians scored six runs in the last two innings to gain an 8-to-3 victory.

SEWELL'S STRING SNAPPED

The notable feature of the game was the absence of Joe Sewell for the first time after 1,102 games. His streak was broken by illness, which kept him in bed with a temperature of 102. Joe had missed only one previous game since 1920 and none at all since 1922.

Ted Lyons, of Chicago, turned in another good pitching performance as the four first division teams of the American League downed the four trailers. Lyons held the New York Yankees to six scattered hits and gave Chicago a 10-to-1 victory. Bud Clancy aided with two home runs, a triple and a single.

Sad Sam Jones, of Washington, hurled much the same kind of game as the Senators downed the St. Louis Browns, 13 to 5, for their eleventh victory in 14 games and the fifth successive Brownie defeat. Washington benefitted from four errors and made 17 hits.

Rube Walberg completed the roster of winning pitchers for the circuit by hurling the Philadelphia Athletics to a 9-to-4 victory over the Detroit Tigers. He allowed eight hits and struck out six.

REDS BEAT GIANTS

The New York Giants and Cincinnati Reds went to the other extreme as the Giants again became former leaders of the National League. Seven moundsmen were used by the two teams with the final result a 9-to-8 victory for Cincinnati. The Reds attacked their ex-jinx, Fred Fitzsimmons in the second inning with a rally that brought seven of their runs. The Giant defeat put Pittsburgh on top of the league standing again.

Bill Clark, Brooklyn pitcher, scored a great triumph, but went through some bad moments to get it. He allowed the St. Louis Cardinals four runs and a tie score in one inning, but the Robins supported him with four more counters and gave him his first victory in five games by an 8-to-4 count.

Hal Carlson, of the Chicago Cubs, likewise found the going hard at times, but he also finished what he started victoriously. Carlson allowed the Phillies 15 hits, including Chuck Klein's fifth home run and one by Sigman in the ninth inning, but the Cubs made better use of their 14 hits off Koupal, Alexander and Milligan and pulled out an 11-to-8 decision.

were told time and again that they would find Sandwich, with its chilling winds and rain, the toughest course in the world; they were repeatedly reminded that the great Jones himself had taken an 88 there and Jess Sweetser a 90, and warned that unless they changed their game to a flatter swing and a lower ball they wouldn't have a chance.

Bobby Jones.

ATTEMPTING TO TELL Bobby Jones how to play golf would be about as absurd in itself as offering Babe Ruth some pointers on how to hit a baseball, and there is just about as little call for the tendering of similar suggestions to his seven teammates, who have been selected on their records as the best in the country. But aside from the part of it, the general attitude of the self-appointed coaches appears to be all wrong. It doesn't help the game of a player to be told that he is facing almost certain defeat. It tends to lessen his confidence and that's always harmful. One of the biggest handicaps the Americans are up against is that of too much advice. There is no denying that Sandwich is a tough course, but why give the invading golfers the impression that they can't win there? Why not quit harping on a change of style, which is likely to prove fatal in any sport, and let them play their own game? American class in various pastimes has conquered greater obstacles than the Sandwich course and possibly it may win again in spite of the calamity howlers.

IF DAN HOWLEY has not accomplished anything else of a notable nature thus far in reconstructing the Cincinnati baseball club, he appears at least to have succeeded in smashing an old Red pitching hoodoo.

On June 8, June 11, July 7 and July 30, last year, Pitcher Fred Fitzsimmons, of the Giants, made the remarkable record of shutting out the Reds four times in succession. Yesterday they pounded him off the hill in the second inning, when they piled up seven runs.

BUCS MAY GET CROSETTI

Frankie Crosetti, Italian boy starring at short for the San Francisco Seals, is not coming to the Pirates this year, but the Pittsburgh club will have the first chance to purchase him, as a result of the friendly relations existing between the Pittsburgh and San Francisco clubs.

When the Pirates were in the Golden Gate city, officials of the Seals told the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph correspondent that under no circumstances would they sell Crosetti before the coast flag race is decided.

Crosetti has been playing great ball since the season started, and rumors were out to the effect that he would come to the Pirates.

FARMER COOPER FLOORS, BEATS WALLACE

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Farmer Joe Cooper, countrified slicker, of Terre Haute, Ind., copped another "duke" at the Moose Temple last night, his third straight decision victory in Pittsburgh, the others having been over Buck McTiernan and Jimmy Belmont. He "took" Harry (Kid) Wallace, James (Red) Mason's importation from Philadelphia, with the loss of only two rounds in the 10 before a fair-sized crowd.

There wasn't much to the fight except for a knockdown for a count of nine scored by Cooper after one minute of fighting in the second round. The Farmer permitted Wallace to set a fast pace and win the opening round and Wallace was continuing blithely on his winning way with the start of the second session. Cooper finally induced Harry to slug with him and over went Joe's right and Wallace went down badly stung. He started to pull himself up, but decided to take advantage of the nine count on one knee while holding onto the ropes. When he arose, Cooper chased him from rope to rope in an unsuccessful attempt to finish him.

WALLACE ON RUN

Thereafter it was a monotonous fight, with the light-hitting Wallace using the ring and Cooper stalking after him in his peculiar deliberate manner, grunting every time he let a punch go with some power behind it. Late in the eighth round, Wallace began a rally that came close to evening up that frame, and he won the ninth, in which he did all of the forcing, but Cooper had him on the run again in the tenth.

Cooper scaled 147 pounds and Wallace 142½.

Billy Holt, hard-hitting Negro welterweight, of Canton, O., was prevented by school authorities from coming here to fight Ted Yarosz, of Monaca, in the semi-final, the authorities even jailing, on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor, a representative of his manager, who went to the Ohio town to bring Billy here. Joe Corelli, fat and out of shape at 156¾ pounds, as against Yarosz' 147, subbed on short notice and put up a commendable but losing fight.

WARNER BEATS PARIS

The best bout of the night was the second, in which Johnny Warner, of Clairton, 122½ pounds, making his professional debut, showed a lot of promise in beating Sammy Paris, of the Hill, 124½, in a bloody, hard-fought battle.

The Gypsy Kid, of Beaver Falls, 118½ pounds, was no match for Jimmy Thomas, of the Hill, same weight, and the opening bout was stopped late in the second round, after the Kid had been floored several times and had gone down a few more times without being hit. His purse was held up.

Eddie Kennedy refereed all of the bouts and the judges were Charley Meininger and Frank Ferris. Bill Schuster did the announcing. A. C. Couch and Max Zeugschmidt were the timers and Dr. M. R. Goldman was the attending physician.

Between Rounds

Johnny Dundee and Jackie Rodgers will conclude their serious training today for their third meeting, in the Motor Square Garden ring, Monday night. Both are down to weight and report they are in fine fighting fettle. With the grudge element involved, a hotter battle is looked for.

Buck McTiernan, of Switzerland, also will polish off today for his eight-round semi-final at the Garden, against Lee Sola, of Donora. In the two-and-a-remainder Monday night, Jimmy Ward, of the South Side, meets Teddy Welch, of McKeesport, and Moe Baloh, National junior amateur bantamweight champion, makes his professional debut against Jackie Wilson, Negro, of the East End.

Slatting Glatz has two bouts in view at Johnstown, a return battle with Joey Provost, of Philadelphia, on May 26, and a curtain clash with Mickey Davis at the Point Stadium, June 11.

Eddie LeRoy, of Williamsport, and Johnny Chicko, of Johnstown, box the main bout of a show at the Auditorium in Johnstown one week from Monday night.

Chuck Zelinski, middleweight boxer, of Glassport, was married in St. Cecelia's Catholic Church, Glassport, this morning to Miss Mary Blask, of Glassport.

Charley Lock, of the North Side, former manager of boxers, has completed arrangements to run boxing shows at Hickey Park, Millvale, this summer and already has men at work putting the place in shape to serve as an arena.

The Fratts brothers, Byron and Ray, are constructing a six-alley bowl at East Liverpool, O., and will have it ready for bouts before the end of the month.

Tom Mairo and Young Hoey will box one of the bouts on a card of four eight-rounders which will wind up the local show of the season at Motor Square Garden one week from next Monday night.

Fight Results

At Moose Temple—Former Joe Cooper defeated Harry (Kid) Wallace, 10 rounds; Ted Yarosz defeated Joe Corelli, 6 rounds; Johnny Warner defeated Sammy Paris, 6 rounds; Jimmy Thomas won by technical knockout over The Gypsy Kid, 2 rounds.

CLARKE FANS

Some snappy work was necessary to keep the Braves from tieing the score against the Pirates in the ninth inning at Forbes Field yesterday, and above are shown the two plays that saved the day. The first three Braves up singled, one of them scoring to make the count 3-2 against them. Maguire then was safe on a fumbled bunt, loading the bases. Jess Petty was rushed to Kremer's aid and Rhiel hit to the pitcher, who threw to Hemsley for a force on Berger at the plate and Hemsley relayed the throw to beat the batter at first. Clarke, pinch hitting, then struck out, ending the game, to the great relief of the home fans.

ALLISON, VAN RYN WINNERS

PHILADELPHIA, May 3. — (AP.)—John Van Ryn, of East Orange, N. J., and Wilmer Allison, of Austin, Tex., holders of the English doubles championship, for the second straight day defeated George M. Lott, of Chicago, and John Hope Doeg, of Santa Monica, Cal., national doubles kings, in a Davis Cup workout test yesterday, 6-3, 7-5.

Van Ryn and Allison won the first set with comparative ease, their team work being the factor which gave them the advantage. In the second frame, Lott and Doeg led 5 to 4 in games and 40 to 0. At this critical point Doeg foozled an easy shot, but by hard work they managed to take the tenth 8 points to 6. Van Ryn and Allison captured the next two games for the set and match.

Horace Brand

Horace Brand, pro at the Uniontown Country Club, hasn't won any local major tournaments, but he never has failed to place within the money, which is saying a great deal. Horace is a brother of Fred Brand, at Allegheny, but he trailed Fred to this country, coming from Carnoustie to the United States (to do most anything except play golf) in 1912. His first pro job was assistant to his brother, who then was pro at the Mt. Lebanon Country Club. He signed at the St. Clair Country Club around 1915, and went from there to Cambridge Springs, in 1917, where he stayed a year. Brand was the first professional at the Highland Country Club, after it was changed from the Bellevue Country Club, in 1922. He stayed with Highland for six years, from where he went to the Washington County Golf and Country Club. Leaving Little Washington, Horace spent a year at the St. Clair Country Club in Detroit, following which he hooked up with the Uniontown Country Club, where he has been for the last three years. His teaching was broken up by a trip overseas for the United States Army—the Three Hundred Forty-first Machine Gunners of the Eighty-Ninth Division in particular—in 1917 and 1918. He has qualified twice in the national open events played at Oakmont.—VERN SWRATSFAGER.

NIGHT BASEBALL SUCCESS

DES MOINES, Ia., May 3.—(AP.)—Des Moines last night won the first regularly scheduled night baseball game in a Class A or any other league, defeating Wichita in the inaugural contest of the Western League season here, 13 to 6.

Playing conditions were described as comparable to the customary daylight baseball. Fly balls, sailing 90 feet high, the height of the projectors, were caught without trouble.

Des Moines players fielded in errorless fashion and the vision was considered as good as provided by nature.

The apparent success of the innovation means the culmination of seven years of planning for night baseball by E. L. Keyser, president of the Des Moines club. Baseball celebrities from all parts of the country were in the stands to pass judgment on the venture.

SOCCER RIVALS MEET

RAFFIES PLAY GALLATIN HERE FOR TITLE

By TOM BIRKS.

With a number of soccer notables present, the final game of the National Amateur Cup will be played at the Westinghouse High School field today. The Fall River Raffies, eastern sectional champs, and Gallatin, western section ruler, are to be the contesting elevens.

This will be the second national finale to be held in Pittsburgh. The last one, in 1927, found Heidelberg defeating La Flamme, of New Bedford, to win its first title.

Last year Heidelberg again wrote its name on the trophy, defeating Newark in the final battle at Newark. Though Gallatin has won many trophies in Western Pennsylvania over a period of years, this will be its first appearance in a national final.

GALLATIN WORTHY

The Heidelberg club was suspended at the beginning of the season. That stopped the Green and Gold from defending its crown. This fighting Gallatin aggregation, however, will be a worthy contender for the title, and should uphold the reputation of Western Pennsylvania soccer.

Besides winning the Western eliminations, the upriver club also has copped the American League and the Western Pennsylvania flag, quite a feat for one season.

The Raffies come with a reputation of being the greatest amateum team the East has produced this year. Gallatin will have a tough job on its hands if the Raffies compare with the Defenders and La Flamme aggregations in class.

Two distinct types of soccer will be on display. Gallatin as an American team, playing the American style. The Raffies stick to the European fancy style, which must be admitted, is wonderful to watch. The American style, advanced nationally by Heidelberg, seems to be able to put a crimp into that carpet weaving method of Eastern teams, but the Raffies may spring something new and play a typical cup tie dashing game.

PATTERSON PRESENT

Since the Fall River professional team copped the open title, it is only natural that the Raffies would like to take home that amateur cup and therefore make soccer history.

President Armstrong Patterson, of the United States Football Association, will be on hand, together with Vice President Bill Angus, of Cleveland and Secretary John McEwan, of Cleveland.

The game is scheduled to start at 4 p. m., daylight saving time, so out-of-town fans may take it in.

CARNEGIE TECH LOSES MEET

Geneva College's well balanced track and field varsity scored a decisive 90 to 45 victory over the Carnegie Tech squad in the Tartan Bowl yesterday afternoon. The Covenanters piled up an overwhelming majority in the track events, winning all but two first places on the cinders.

AUSTIN NOT DROPPED

LONDON, May 3.—(AP.)—H. W. Austin, the young and somewhat erratic British tennis ace, has not been dropped from the Davis cup team, it developed yesterday, but is only resting and remaining out of Britain's second-round match against either Poland or Rumania at his own request.

Sport Vignettes

You can win money betting that the visiting team in baseball doesn't necessarily have to go to bat first, although that has become the regular procedure . . . The home team may bat first if its captain so elects . . . Look it up in the rules if you don't believe it, as Mr. Ripley might say . . . Jack Sharkey appears to have his bout with Max Schmeling well sized up when he says the German is the same type of boxer as Tommy Loughran, whom he knocked out in three rounds last year . . . "Max is a counter boxer," says the Gob, "and they are my meat. I'll break down his defense with my left and then knock him out with a right." . . . This writer has seen Sharkey almost stab out Jim Maloney's eyes with that left and then chop him down with a blasting right, and he did the same thing to Loughran, one of the cleverest big men in the history of the game . . . Schmeling, against Paulino last year, kept pawing with his left hand for 10 rounds looking for a chance to cross his right and he didn't succeed until Paulino tired . . . Then he hit the Basque with everything he had with his right for the last five rounds and couldn't even floor him . . . Max hasn't boxed since and on his record doesn't rate along with the terrible Sharkey man . . . Yet the fight will gross around $1,000,000 and shows a handsome profit for the Milk Fund, its sponsor . . . Sharkey already is signed by the Madison Square Garden Corporation to defend his title in 1931 if he beats Schmeling to gain a clear claim to the laurels . . . In 22 full seasons in the National and American Leagues, Denton T. (Cy) Young, the pitching master, turned in a total of 511 victories against 315 defeats, for a winning percentage of .619, a remarkable showing . . . He pitched for Cleveland and Boston in both circuits and also put in two seasons with the St. Louis Nationals . . . Cleveland claimed him for 11½ seasons and Boston for nine and one-half . . . The two persons seemingly most vitally interested in the outcome of the Jackie Rodgers-Johnny Dunn bout at Motor Square Garden Monday night are Johnny Deutsch and Jimmy Conrad, the respective managers of the boxers . . . With them the rivalry has taken on the proportions of a personal feud.—HARRY KECK.

CHARLEROI, Pa., May 3.—The long-awaited white flier shoot between George Marker, of Brownsville, and Arthur W. Best, Dravosburg, is scheduled to take place this afternoon at 2 o'clock in the local Middle Atlantic League baseball park.

P. Waner Gains .500 Hitting Mark

Paul Waner and Bill Cissell, batting leaders of the National and American leagues, again led the slugging parade in the big six yesterday. Waner hit three times in four trips to the plate against the Boston Braves and raised his average to the even .500 mark. Cissell hit twice in three attempts as the White Sox beat the New York Yankees and scored four runs, lifting his average to .447. Jake Flowers, second place holder in the big six, dropped to .453, getting but one hit in four tries while Al Simmons tightened his grip on fourth place with two hits out of four.

Babe Ruth gained some ground by a semi-official revision of the figures which removed one time at bat from his total but promptly lost it by going hitless in three trips to the plate. Rogers Hornsby hit once in four tries. The standings:

READY TO GO

I've been taking a lot of good workouts lately and I'm in pretty good shape if I do say it myself. Jule told me to be ready that he probably would get me in an exhibition game or two before the summer is over. To tell the truth, I think I can go in this league, but I'm learnin' a lot just sittin' around watching some of the smart birds.

I should worry about gettin' in there when a guy like Art Shires can't crowd into the lineup. I see where Art says all the advertising he gave Hack helped Hack to get a raise this year. I guess he's right, too. If I was in Hack's place, I'd challenge Art at the end of the season and then be a holdout again. All you gotta do in this game to pull down the dough is to be a little bit smart.

Tigers Send Hurler To Bolster Stogies

WHEELING, W. Va., May 3.—The Wheeling Stogies were strengthened yesterday by the addition of Bill Staples, a likely-looking right-handed hurler, who came in here from the Detroit Tigers. He has been South all spring, and is in fine condition.

The club dropped three rookies when Manager Prysock released John Hospidor, right handed pitcher from Youngstown; Ed Youngling, a right-hander from Staten Island, N. Y., and Bill Kosick, an infielder from Cleveland.

After today's game with the Windsor Power club, an exhibition tilt, the Smokes will release Ginerella and Miner, catchers; Leavy and Beauts, pitchers; Fishback, shortstop, and Korb, first baseman, to the Hamilton, Ontario, club of the Canadian League.

SCHOOL VAULT MARK FALLS

COLUMBUS, May 3.— (AP.) — Paced by the performance of John Wonsowicz, Froebel High School, Gary, Ind., who broke all high school records for the pole vault, high school athletes from a dozen states and runners from Ohio colleges, started the seventh annual Ohio relays off in a record breaking manner yesterday.

Two thousand watched the equalling of the national interscholastic record for the one mile relay and the breaking of six records for the meet in addition to Wonsowicz's wonderful vaulting.

When the boy from Gary stood at the end of the pole vault runway, all attention centered upon his efforts to raise the world interscholastic record of 13 feet, 3-16 inches, set by Lowell Allen, of Salem, O., in 1928.

CLEARS 13 FEET

Leaving seven competitors tied for second place at 11 feet, 6 inches, Wonsowicz mounted steadily upward, finally clearing 13 feet, 4 inches without a halt. The Gary boy broke the prep indoor record with a leap of 13 feet, 2 inches in Iowa City last month.

A great team of quarter milers, representing Newark, N. J., Preparatory School, took the one-mile preparatory school relay in 3:26.7; equalling the national interscholastic record. Ashkenas, Bobertz, Keller and Sears, running in that order, left Kiskiminetas Academy, of Saltsburg, Pa., 30 yards behind after Bobertz had opened a big gap.

In addition to the broken records in high school events, Ohio college athletes smashed marks in two events especially for them.

Norman Lambacher, Ohio Wesleyan's sprint star, hustled down the 100-yard straightway in 9.9 seconds, breaking the record of 10.1 he established last year.

MILLIGAN QUALIFIES

Tilligan, Peabody High's star sprinter, ran his field into the ground in the high school 100-yard dash semi-finals at the Ohio relays Friday afternoon, breasting the tape in 10.1 seconds and crediting himself with the best time of the day. He was the only qualifier from the Pittsburgh district in the century.

Miami University's sprinters and distance men ran the sprint medley in 3:36.2, taking one-fifth of a second off the record they set last year. Ohio Wesleyan was second.

Lakewood, (O.), High School's one mile relay team won from Hamilton Collegiate Institute, of Hamilton, Ont., in 3:32.4, three seconds slower than the record.

Today 1,000 athletes from 60 universities and colleges in 17 states will compete in seven university relays, five colleges, in nine special events and the weight event triathlon. World's records will be threatened by Tom Warne, of Northwestern in the pole vault, by George Simpson, Claude Bracey and Eddie Tolan in the 100-yard dash, by Illinois and Chicago's teams in the quarter mile relay and by Illinois and Ohio State in the shuttle hurdle relay.

GRAYS AT CHARLEROI

The Homestead Grays make the first appearance of the season in the Monongahela Valley today when they meet the Charleroi Club of the Middle Atlantic League at Charleroi.

Second Symphony.

Johannes Brahms' "Symphony" of supplemental and joy, his second, will be played in its entirety by Walter Damrosch's orchestra.

This work was first produced in Vienna in 1877 and less than a year later was conducted by Theodore Thomas in New York. It is said to be the only symphony by this composer that has a popular appeal. Whereas Brahms took 10 years to write his first symphony, the second was completed in less than 12 months.

The first movement suggests a bright summer day with an air of tranquility. The second might be called "Evening," with its impression of thoughtfulness. The Allegretto represents a blending of the former and the scherzo, swinging smoothly from one tempo to the other. Again joy is illustrated in the final movement which begins softly but rises to a great rush of joy.

TEST RECIPES

KDKA's test kitchen, under the direction of Evelyn Gardiner, has its emulators. From a rural correspondent near Apollo, Pa., comes the information that the ladies of the neighborhood "test" the recipes broadcast by KDKA, then travel from house to house to see how they work out. Sometimes the men folk approve, and at other times they don't, but they always look forward to the special day with interest, says the correspondent.

"The Bank Account."

A radio adaptation by C. L. Messer of one of the Harvard "47 Workshop" plays, "The Bank Account," by Howard Rock, will be presented.

The story deals with an office worker who has been turning his earnings over to his wife on the assumption that she would put aside a certain amount toward the purchase of a little farm that would mean independence and a quiet life. His wife, however, feeling forced to compete with her neighbors in the matter of dress, has spent the earnings on herself instead of putting them into the bank.

Her husband returns early from work one day and announces that he is ready to celebrate because he has long since paid that last payment was to be made at this time, and his freedom from the hours he despises is assured. He has gone to great length to work out his letter of resignation.

At the height of his joy his wife is forced to confess that she has spent the bank account. After a touching scene he hurries back to the office to finish the afternoon's work.

CHICKIE By ELENORE MEHERIN

CHAPTER LXXVI.

Chickie could see her mother's bland, rosy cheeks grow ashen; see her mouth sag. She pushed the tray from her, saying quickly: "Here, Jennie! So you and Jonathan want to be rid of me, I take it? Ho—you would peddle me off—"

When Jennie was gone Chickie lay a long while with her hands pressed over her face. She kept saying: "I'll hear tomorrow; I'll wait this week—just this week—"

Scenes from the meeting with Jake flashed disturbingly through these thoughts. Now for the first time she weighed Jake's looks—Jake's words.

How did he come to take it all for granted? How did he know that Barry was gone and was not coming back to her? Why, he seemed to read her heart!

Suddenly she was frightened. Perhaps Jake had seen him in the South? Or perhaps Tufts told him. Might he even have mentioned that night she had come to the corridor?

No! What did Tufts know? Why, they might have arranged to meet like that—

Oh—Jake only took a chance! Jake knew that he was away and so he came stealing back. Then she had let him know the rest, getting excited like that, rushing him out when they were scarcely finished—

She got up and began to dress—soft, happy morning that it was. Like the hundreds when they had driven down the highway, taking their lunch, dreaming the long sweet hours away!

She thought: "Soon—soon—I can't go on like this—" But she could not force herself to meet the issue. She dallied in a kind of terrible despair with the brighter things that might have been. She said to herself quietly: "Yes—Jake would come back—"

Visions His Return

And Jake would phone. He would insist on that tomorrow she had half promised. She fancied herself saying to him: "You don't want to go out with me, Jake. Listen—" Then telling him. Seeing his face darken, seeing him, too, turn from her with a shame.

Seeing herself finally alone—standing in that gray waste, watching the gray sea.

This vision she swept away. There never would be the moment when Jake or her mother would know. Never that!

No use to get wild about it now. Barry hadn't received the message. The moment he did—then he would come. It would be the gladdest thing in the world. But kind—anyway. And he would want that. Oh—they would try and be happy—try to make it sweet again—

Sunday she filled her mind with this vision. Fancied herself saying to him: "Barry—never mind—we can go back—Oh, I can be so strong now—strong for anything——"

It was Tuesday that Bess Abbot came into the office at noon. She came for Janina, but seeing Chickie, insisted that she, too, have lunch with them.

Chickie always was fascinated with the grace and the duchess languor that the white, fragile Bess carried off so delicately. She admired the endless stream of words that rippled so carelessly from the brightly painted lips.

It began as they sat at the table. In the midst of lunch Bess turned to Chickie. "Well—you nice, fresh violet. I do like your shameless impudence. Now—if it was I that had just tossed a sweet, long love affair into the sea I'd have the decency to mourn a little.

News From Bess

"At least I'd lose my appetite and have to take the rest cure. But will you look at that brazen hussy tucking in the French pastry as though handsome redheads grew in every little garden!"

Janina's eyes narrowed. Her foot moved as though it would nudge Bess, but it was Chickie's toe it touched.

Bess went on: "Well—I suppose you feel cheerful about it, seeing that Ila's soft arms were ready, willing and waiting. Ill wind that blows no one any good!"

Chickie managed to say: "How so, Bess? Did I send him to such a doom?"

"I don't see how you can plead 'not guilty.' Maybe it's all for the best! They'll make a good pair. The wonder is that Ila ever let him escape. If her father hadn't packed her off to Europe four years ago they'd have been married then, I suppose."

Now Janina's foot kicked viciously. It struck Chickie's ankle.

But Chickie said: "So my It made no difference now that Janina might know—that Janina might see her heart. Chickie said: "Oh—Yes! So he went with her? They've gone already?"

"Why, the boat left for the cruise last week—Monday, I believe."

Monday — two days before Chickie had sent her telegram. lost love isn't mourning. Bess. Who gave you all the news?"

"Two and two together, my dear! I'm clever at deductions. I take it that she's carrying him off to Italy for sweet designs of her own."

She would have to meet it alone.

Now she hurried along at Janina's side, watching her feet; watching the feet of men, heavy and swift, of girls, light, pointed. She began counting these feet, not daring raise her eyes, not trusting her shaking lips to say a word.

He was gone on the tour—perhaps even now standing on the deck Ila at his side, Ila's fair hair blowing in his face. He didn't know—now he wouldn't know. The months would pass—

Janina Says It's True

She shivered. Within her was a cold—a violence of cold. She felt like gripping Janina's hands, like shrieking: "God, what am I to do! Janina—what in the name of God can I do?"

Janina spoke abruptly: "Well, too bad, ole kid! Sorry I kind of butted in on the thing. Bess never guessed, though. You didn't know he was going on the tour?"

"No—"

"Didn't he hint about it? Didn't you half guess that was why he beat it off South? He knew he could join them there — make a neater break, and a man always takes the easier way."

"Oh, no—that's not why he went—not at all—"

A sharp withering glance. But Janina halted. The dead pallor of Chickie's skin; the hunted look in Chickie's deep beautiful eyes smote her. "Of all things, baby! You think he went to visit his mother? So considerate-like. And then just sweetly got roped into this? Well, if I were you, Chickie, I'd not be finding excuses—"

"I'm not! Why—well we just agreed you know—it was all agreed, in a way—"

"I see! Agreed to part and meet again if all went well on the Potomac—eh?"

Chickie closed her eyes, following Janina blindly—heaving against her.

"Well, it's tough, ol' dear. At least, it seems so to you. But it's not a tragedy. When a man wants to go, let him have the gate; help him along with the boot—the quicker, the better! If it dragged on for years and then ended, you'd have something to cry about."

Leaves Office Early

"I'm not crying, Janina. Only I expected him back—so it was a shock——"

Janina's eyes hardened. "Poor kid! I suppose it was But don't think about him; not worth it. No man is, when he's gone. That's what women must learn. Drop a flower on the grave, not a tear. Be glad for what you had—don't mourn for what you've lost!"

In the devastation of Chickie's mind, Janina's wit was a paltry, twittering thing—a sparrow chirping in the trench where a young world dies . . . She had a sudden impulse to say: "Oh, rave, Janina! What do you know—! I wonder what you'd do? You can meet whatever comes? Oh, you can, can you? I wonder how—"

This frightened "How?" shrilled through her thoughts. It hooted like a wind in her ears. At her desk that afternoon it beat against her. Her hands grew rigid on the typewriter. She whispered back, frantic: "God!" A faintness that was warm and sick went circling round and round about her heart. Noises thudded in her ears.

Finally, when Janina went into the office of Harry Lewis, Chickie scribbled a note: "I'm beating it. Tell Lewis anything you like. I need the air, ole thing! See you tomorrow—"

"IN THE SPRING ---- A Young Man's Fancy"—

DRAWN BY NELL BRINKLEY

"When daisies pied, and violets blue,
And lady-smocks all siver white,
And cuckoo buds of yellow hue
Do paint the meadows with delight."
—WILL SHAKESPEARE.

THEN A YOUNG MAN'S fancy turns his feet toward the Marriage License Bureau! "Up comes the primrose, wondering!" Little boys do funny things with their legs, the caperings that they have in common with colts and calves and baby squirrels and lambs! Girls stand in front of shining store windows, first on one foot and then on the other, wrapt and rapt, with greedy eyes on the cloudy spring frocks that flaunt there.

Editors at desks wish they could be floating on the languid surface of a southern river in an old boat with a pile of books, a fishing line dangling over the side, "flat on my back, and it doesn't matter if I would be catching anything, either!"

Artists yawn over creating the very georgeousness they love to do. Housewives feel like sweeping the crumbs under the rug, rocking on the porch and letting the children eat delicatessen food. Poor little child-heads lean on hands held up by lazy elbows on school desks, overcome by spring fever, while the bees buzz an invitation to the open world. And cocky birds in the branches by the school windows say. Play hookey? Play hookey?

Commonplace commuters are haunted by strange gypsy desires that are a mixture of campfires, hunting, steamer decks and engine bells!

Madge Succeeds in Soothing Katie's Injured Feelings

"What do you mean?" I asked sternly. "What 'secrets' does Mrs. Ticer know that you think should have been told to you?"

Purposely I made my voice heavy with an irony which I hoped Katie's keen perceptions would catch. But, though I saw her eyes flash with comprehension of my meaning, she was not at all mollified.

"Secrets, enuff," she said shrewdly. "Lookie, Missis Graham, who got to clean and cook in dees house vunce, you tell me dot?"

"You, of course, Katie," I answered, keeping my voice light and nonchalant with an effort. My anger at her was fast returning, and if it had not been for my memories of her long and faithful service and my recognition of the domestic emergencies confronting me, I am afraid I should have dismissed her without waiting for another word of impertinence from her.

"Vell, den," her voice rose stridently. "Vy you no tell me vunce dot you haf lots company Christmas time? Parties for Marion und boys and girls dot stay by dose Brixtons. Und vy I haf to vait to hear from dot Ticer vomans dot dose Brixtons goin' coom live by Larches?"

With a sudden movement I gripped Katie's shoulders with my hands and looked down at her laughing.

"How old are you, Katie, my child?" I asked. "Not over six, I'll wager. When have I had any chance to talk over Christmas plans with you? The first chance I get after Mrs. Bickett leaves I'm going to sit down and go over the Christmas plans with you thoroughly, as I do every year. I have not done that with Mrs. Ticer at all, as you ought to know. Of course, I had to tell her that the Brixtons wished to rent The Larches because she is the caretaker of the place, and I said to her that we expected to be quite gay this Christmas with the young people entertained by the Brixtons. I ought not to be explaining this to you, Katie, for you have displeased me very much, both by your treatment of Mrs. Ticer and your foolish words just now. But I am humoring you, as I would a child too little to know how naughty it has been."

My little maid's eyes, rounder than ever, were staring at me, filled with the joy of a child at some unexpected good fortune.

"Den she not know more dan me" she exclaimed, ignoring everything else magnificently. "Dot poor bottle feesh, she all puff oop, tink she get my goat mit her: 'Vy Katie, I'm surprised you not know dot. Maybe I no ought to say eet.' "

It took all my resolution to keep from exploding into a laugh. I have seen the bottle fish of Long Island, so delicious to the taste, so repulsive in appearance when they puff up into "bottles" in an attempt at protection for themselves. Katie's mimicry of Mrs. Ticer and her translation of our neighbor's rather prim vocabulary into her own atrocious idioms added to my struggle. But all desire to laugh suddenly vanished when the door of the dining room was thrown open and my mother-in-law, dignified but plainly irate, appeared in the doorway, while behind her was Mrs. Ticer, patiently reluctant to share in the scene.

Household Hints

Watercress should never be bought if it is intermingled with weeds. This indicates that the cress has not been grown in proper beds, but has been pulled up from some overgrown brackish water infested with weeds of all kinds.

Play that extra rubber with a clear conscience when you know there is a can of good tomatoes on the pantry shelf. The family will think you've been spending the afternoon concocting an appetizing dish if you drop a little Worcestershire sauce in with the salt, pepper and lump of butter seasoning as the tomatoes are heated.

* * *

Give it a good beating if you want fine applesauce. That is the way to bring out the best that's in this delectable dish. While the sauce is still warm there has been no opportunity for it to thicken, and it is then that the cook takes out her favorite egg-beater and whisks it briskly. Any little stubborn lumps that may have persisted in remaining will be broken up, air is fluffed into the tasty mixture and, well, just try it for yourself!

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

All, All Alone!

The greatest terror that summer holds for the average man is not the prospect that his wife is going to desert him, but the appalling thought that his Personal Stenographer is going to LEAVE him, for two whole weeks!

A man can somehow survive the absence of his wife, for a few weeks, but the absence of his faithful stenographer causes him a real heartache.

* * *

For, while his wife's return is an assured fact, there is always the possibility that his "old girl" may meet somebody who will "take her out of it all," and she may never come back!

* * *

Every man leans as heavily upon his stenographer as she will permit him to; but, he never realizes how dependent he has become, until she walks out, some morning, and he finds himself trying to pour dictation into the unsympathetic ear of a strange substitute who doesn't "understand" him.

* * *

No longer may he turn to "Little Faithful" a basketfull of unanswered correspondence, to be "taken care of in her own clever way."

* * *

No longer may he mutter and murmuer behind a big cigar in the blissful certainty that his dictation will be translated into intelligible English.

No longer may he check out for lunch, with a clear conscience and a carefree mind, knowing that all will be well.

* * *

No longer may h talk in technical terms and abbreviations, and fling around the names of familiar firms in careless assurance.

* * *

No longer may he close down his desk at 4 p. m. and speed away to the golf links, leaving his letters to be signed POR him, without qualm or tremor.

* * *

He is ALL ALONE, in a great city, with no "Steno" to guide him, guard him, think for him, lie for him, protect him, watch over him or——!

* * *

A wife's absence means merely a disordered house and a round of unappetizing restaurants—but a stenographer's absence is a real TRAGEDY!

* * *

A wife's absence may drive a man to indigestion or flirtation—but his stenographer's absence drives him to desperation!

* * *

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

What to Wear

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

My little girl received an invitation to attend her teacher's wedding. This is to be a church wedding in the afternoon.

1. What should she wear?

2. Is it necessary to answer as to whether she will attend, or not?

3. Should I address the present to the bride's maiden name, or should it be addressed Mr. and Mrs. Brown. B.

YOUR LITTLE DAUGHTER would wear a day frock, the kind that she would, for instance, wear to church on Sunday. And she would wear a hat.

2. If the invitation was formal, and to the church ceremony only, it is not necessary to answer it. If it includes an invitation to the reception, it should be answered, formally.

3. The wedding present is addressed to the bride-to-be, in her maiden name.

A Gracious Service

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I was walking down the street one day, and a man was walking ahead of me. A gust of wind came and took his hat from his head. The hat circled around me and then blew to the street and then back again at me. I then stooped and picked it up. I know it is incorrect to pick up anything for a man, but I thought for a minute this might be an exception. Was I correct? C. H.

INDEED YOU WERE correct—and I am sure that he blessed you for your graciousness and service!

How to Keep Well

By DR. COPELAND

Food, Air and Sunshine!

A LACK of proper diet, of fresh air and sunshine play havoc with the physical health. There are thousands of persons, each of whom can trace a deplorable physical condition to the lack of a nutritious diet and a shut-in existence.

DR. COPELAND

While it may not be traced directly to the neglect of hygiene, anaemia is a disease which is all too prevalent among persons who are guilty of such neglect. It is a disease of so much importance that attention must be directed to it.

Anaemia and tuberculosis are, in a sense, closely allied. In both there is a breaking down of the red corpuscles of the blood. This coloring matter in the blood, called "hemoglobin," contains iron and oxygen, elements which are absolutely essential to strength and good health.

There is no doubt that the reducing fad of the past few years has been conducive to thousands of cases of anaemia and tuberculosis. For fashion's sake, girls go without the proper food. They remain thin, or get thin, and fail in health to an alarming extent.

It makes no difference what type of anaemia the patient has, there will be loss of strength and vigor. The skin and the lips are pale. The pulse and breathing are rapid, the digestion is poor, and there is broken sleep. Headaches and dizziness, sometimes fainting, and neuralgic pains occur.

You cannot have red blood and good color unless you eat properly. You must have the foods that contain the minerals, especially iron. You must have your full share of the mysterious vitamins. This means you must choose your food with care.

Another cause for anaemia is the absorption of poison from the wastes of the body. Constipation and fermentation in the bowels cannot be disregarded as to their fruitful output of bodily poisons.

You cannot be well if in the body is a chronic infection of any sort. The absorption of pus from diseased gums, teeth, tonsils or other parts of the body may be followed by an anaemic condition.

Overwork, worry and unhealthy conditions all take their toll of the nervous system. This brings me to one of the chief causes of anaemia, and that is bad hygiene. If you live in unhealthful surroundings, without fresh air, an abundance of light and sunshine, plenty of wholesome exercise, you are sure to impair your blood.

Experiments have shown that there are certain foods which build up the red corpuscles of the blood more quickly than others. Liver ranks first as a blood building food. You may use calves' liver, beef, pig or chicken liver—they possess similar properties.

A person who is anaemic hasn't much appetite. On this account it is essential to find new ways of serving food to make it attractive and appealing. Liver may be served in many different ways.

The anaemic person should have a diet which is simple and nutritious. This should include foods rich in iron, such as red, tender beef, liver, eggs and plenty of good milk, well made bread and butter. Also spinach, beets, cabbage and most of the green vegetables should be included. The fresh fruits, especially the citrous fruits and strawberries are rich in iron. Dried prunes, almonds and walnuts are all good.

You cannot neglect the diet and remain in good health. It needs some intelligence to select and maintain a proper diet, but it certainly pays to take advantage of the out-of-doors. Sunshine is yours for the asking. Be outdoors all you can. Build for good health.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

The hair becomes ill the same as any part of the body. Sometimes it is able to pick itself up and carry on, and sometimes it isn't. It is always grateful for care and attention, and smiles up under them. The weekly shampoo with a neutral, bland soap that has been melted the day before, the cold spraying following the shampoo, the brisk massage of the scalp are all of benefit to the human halo.

"Long skirts," says a young woman, makes a girl feel nice. With flowing draperies she thinks she is somebody. She is more inclined to carry herself splendidly than when she wears knee-length kilts. She doesn't feel like acting rowdyish or doing any back slapping. In fact, she has a grand-elegant notion that she is a lady." That's sumpin!

Horoscopes

Sunday, May 4

Sunday's horoscope shows fairly favorable conditions for the conventional pursuits and avocations of the day, with the tendency to indulge in either literary, psychic or mystical activities or investigations.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of fair prospects, with new adventures or projects, attended by favorable change or new contracts, but the money is not under sign of increase and may be lost through carelessness.

A child born on this day may be ingenious, clever, original and independent in thought and action, but it may not be financially successful.

Monday, May 5

Monday's astrological map holds presage of unusually active, lively and eventful developments, with much stirring about and excitement. An important change or journey seems imminent, with promise of financial success through much courage and fine initiative.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of unusual enterprise bold moves and high adventures, with prospects of fair financial success and much personal satisfaction.

A child born on this day may be particularly resourceful, enterprising and adventurous, and would be capable of fine success in many new and original projects.

RIVALS FOR OFFICE SPEAK FROM SAME PLATFORM HERE

Job for Every Worker Chief Issue, Davis Says

Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, candidate for United States senator on the Davis-Brown ticket, in his speech last night at the League of Women Voters' dinner in McCreery's, said:

I am a Republican and I believe in my party and its platform. I support the President of the United States in his efforts to carry out the wishes of the people as expressed in that platform.

"A job for every one who wants to work," he said in a speech the other night. That is good enough for me and I believe it is the greatest issue to every good American.

You women are interested in matters that pertain to our welfare. You are interested in the maternity and infancy act and really it was the women of America who put this act on the statute books.

Babies' Lives Saved

You are interested in child welfare and in the complete reorganization of the government to give better service to the people. You are interested in spending the revenues of the government in a way that affects the real life of the people.

As I have already pointed out it was largely through you that the maternity and infancy acts were placed on the statute books. The Department of Labor, through the Children's Bureau, has been the administrator of that law. Great progress has been made in reducing infant mortality.

In 1928, 16,000 babies who would have died survived the first year of their lives and during the period from 1921 to 1928 more than 60,000 babies lived who otherwise would have died if conditions had remained as they were prior to the passage of that act.

To represent the state as senator one must know not only this state but the nation as well. My work during the last 20 years has taken me to every section of the state and while on m travels I have often heard it said that we could build a wall around Pennsylvania and live.

Yet none of us wants to pay attention to that sort of talk. We are a part of the whole United States. He must keep the state close to the hearts of the people of the other 47 states use the products of our state go not only to every place in the United States but to other parts of e world.

For Protective Tariff

I know Pennsylvania and its competitors in industry throughout the country because since I have been secretary of labor I have had a part in the adjustment of 4,700 labor disputes. I have come in contact, not only with the employers of Pennsylvania but with a very large number of employers throughout the United States.

To meet the representatives of both sides, to bring about cooperation and good will, to have a fair understanding has been no easy task. Today in America we have a splendid spirit because we have comparatively few controversies. Worker and employer are going arm in arm down the highway of life, cooperation, producing and sharing in the profits of the business.

The greatest problem we have on our hands is to keep people regularly employed at a good wage. It is necessary to our happiness as a nation and vitally necessary to business itself. To attain maximum prosperity is to maintain the purchasing power of our people at the peak.

I have stated time and again that my position on the tariff is that of a protectionist. One could not be otherwise after studying the industrial life of the nation. The tariff is no new thing to me.

Brown Outlines Record, Hits Charge of Rival

Francis Shunk Brown, candidate for the Republican nomination for governor on a ticket with James J. Davis, for United States Senator, speaking to the League of Women Voters in McCreery's last night, said:

Something was said about my connection with the Philadelphia organization; that I am taking suggestions from its members. I might say, so far as suggestions are concerned, I will listen to any man or woman in the Commonwealth.

And I might remind the gentleman that in 1922, it was the Philadelphia organization that elected him governor. If it had not been for the organization he would not have been elected.

He thought so much of the organization that either he or his good wife sent a telegram to Vare congratulating him on the result.

I have held and am now holding positions of trust and my record speaks for itself. I have been a member of the Board of City Trusts that has jurisdiction over the money to be spent in welfare work in Philadelphia.

Hits Grundy Claims

I am chairman of the committee on real estate that has to do with the handling of large estates including the Girard estate and others. I have been an officer in many institutions and have always held positions of trust.

As attorney general I did everything possible in assisting the passage of a large program of welfare legislation. In that office it was my duty to coordinate the business and industry of our state with that of the federal government in that trying period of the World War. I refer to my record in all this and ask for your judgment on it.

I helped to prepare the school code, child labor and workmen's compensation acts. I heard Senator Grundy speak here of how he took part in their passage.

I want to say right here that those bills were put on the statute books through the efforts of Gov. Martin G. Brumbaugh over the protests of employers of labor in this commonwealth. I was there and I know about the bills from the beginning to the end.

Denies Dodging Issues

I have been on a committee making a study of the election laws with the view of making recommendations for improvements. Somebody has said something to the effect that I am ducking or dodging that question.

I am not doing either, but I am too much of a gentleman to give that information before the proper time and I will be for any change that work for the betterment of the state.

Now comes this talk on how we can get liquor. With thousands and thousands of unemployed in our state and throughout the nation, with many such vital questions requiring time and effort to remedy, then why all this talk about liquor?

We will get to that in proper time as we will get to all those other questions. If there is a law on the books that the people do not want and will not respect, then it should be sent back to the people for them to decide.

The questions concerned entry into the World Court, election reforms, state aid for schools, child labor laws and the abolishing of the primary election system.

OVATION FOR PINCHOT

Pinchot was given unusual greeting when he was called upon to speak and when he finished the ovation continued until he had to rise and take a bow.

Pinchot reiterated a pledge to abolish the coal and iron police regardless of legislation for he pointed out that the governor must sign every commission for industrial policemen and that he had "control of his right hand."

Davis declared he was a supporter of President Hoover in all matters of law enforcement and quoted Mr. Hoover's concern to relieve the unemployment situation.

The labor secretary credited the women voters with having accomplished passage of beneficial legislation affecting women and children in idustry and the maternity and infants' law.

PHILLIPS SCORES DRYS

Brown reviewed his record as a former attorney general of the state and as a private lawyer and declared that the Republican political organization had elected a man as governor in 1922 who is now criticising it.

Prohibition and its supporters were scored by Phillips who charged the dry agitators with sending youths to jail for petty offenses against the liquor laws and compelling them to associate with hardened criminals.

Grundy claimed to be the sponsor of a considerable amount of social welfare legislation, stood on the Kansas City platform in reference to prohibition and vigorously maintained his attitude for a protective tariff for Pennsylvania products.

Fist Fights Stir Czech Parliament

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, May 3.—(AP.)—Socialist and Communist deputies came to blows in the Czechoslovakian Parliament yesterday during debate over a scheme for workmen's insurance.

Deputies Stern, Katz, Kaufmann, Langer and Hruska exchanged punches not only in the House, but in the lobbies outside afterward. The session was temporarily suspended by the speaker.

Married 33 Years, Is Seeking Divorce

William Tibbs, of 2011 Center avenue, married for 33 years to Vicie Tibbs, filed a libel in divorce yesterday in Common Pleas Court, alleging cruelty, indignities and desertion. They were married May 18, 1897, and separated September 15, 1917.

Unbossed Rule Pledged By Pinchot If Elected

Former Gov. Gifford Pinchot, running independently for the Republican nomination for another term, speaking to the League of Women Voters in McCreery's last night, said:

When I was in office before I was absolutely without strings and if I go back I will be a free man. I never took an order from a boss or a machine in my life and I am too old a dog to learn new tricks. If you make me governor, I alone will be governor, and nobody else.

I propose, regardless of legislation, to abolish the coal and iron policeman unless his commission is signed by the governor and I still have considerable control over my right hand.

The soft coal industry in Pennsylvania has been in difficulty for three years, due to the lake cargo coal freight rates I did my level best in my former administration to secure justice in rates and if you send me back to Harrisburg it will be the duty of the next attorney general to leave nothing undone to get fair rates for Pennsylvania coal and give miners of the state a chance to earn a fair living.

Boosts Good Roads

As to unemployment, I recognize the responsibility of the state to relieve such a situation. When governor I did act and was successful in part in obtaining employment for hundreds of thousands of men.

One thing I did in my administration that should meet the approval of this audience. I was the first governor of any state to appoint a woman to my cabinet. If I am elected I will try to get her back again.

Her work for the children's welfare, for hospitals and for prisons has never been equaled. Dr. Ellen Potter was the best business "man" in my cabinet.

I believe the humbler people in this state have been unduly taxed, especially the farmers. I propose to see that there is equalization of taxation in Pennsylvania and a fair deal to the taxpayers if I am elected governor.

I propose to give the state good roads. During my administration more than 3,000 miles of roads in the primary system were completed. Now let us finish the good work and take the farmer out of the mud.

To defeat election cheating, it seems to me that the most important single thing that can be done is to make it impossible for the man benefited by the cheater to get the office for which the cheating was done.

Would Oust P. S. C.

It is completely ineffective to jail the subordinate involved in the cheating. Among the recommendations of the Committee of 76, appointed by me, was one that compelled the candidate to appoint an overseer, for whom the candidate was responsible, and if the election law were cheated, the candidate could not take office, a definite hindrance we do not have now.

I tried to make the Public Service Commission the servant of the people instead of the cat's paw of the corporations, but was overruled by the courts.

I now propose to accept the decision of the courts and let the Legislature wipe out the commission once and for all. Let there be substituted a fair rate board elected by the people, not only to defend the people in the matter of fair rates but to see that fair meters are used.

Grundy Stresses Laws To Safeguard Workers

Senator Joseph R. Grundy, seeking the Republican nomination to succeed himself, spoke last night at the League of Women Voters' dinner in McCreerys. In part, he said:

I still stand for and will work to develop and enact humanitarian legislation which is so much needed. The Workmen's Compensation law comes under that heading. I participated in the preliminary movement to have one enacted for the protection of Pennsylvania workers in 1909.

A pledge to provide it was included in the platform on which John K. Tener ran for governor in 1910 and I was in complete accord with the program. I and the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association worked for it, co-operating with the commission Gov. Tener appointed in 1911 to study the whole subject of compensating victims of industrial accidents.

A bill was prepared and passed both houses of the Legislature in 1913. There were minor differences between the two houses and the bill was sent to conference. I am proud to say that the representatives from Bucks County, in which I live, voted for the bill in both the House and the Senate. The bill became a law in 1915.

Aids Women, Children

Child labor legislation and legislation for the protection of women in industry have been important concerns with me. As I have sought to improve the workmen's compensation, and with success, so I have favored those other humanitarian movements. My home county of Bucks has always supported them. I shall continue to do so.

I stand four-square on the Republican platform adopted at the Kansas City convention. I was a delegate to that convention and helped to frame the platform. I feel it to be my duty to labor for the fulfillment of all the pledges contained in that document.

I stand for a liberal appropriation for the welfare of our soldiers. Adequate hospitalization for those who suffer as a result of their services for us in the war must be provided. In this matter I shall follow the lead of my colleague from Pennsylvania, Senator David A. Reed, who has worked so assiduously and generally successfully on behalf of our defenders.

For Tariff Guard

As has been indicated, I believe the outstanding issue of the time is the tariff. The securing of adequately protective duties against the products of low-paid foreign labor which without such adequate protection would come into destructive competition with the products of Pennsylvania workers and industries has been a lifetime task with me.

I am still on the job and I intend to remain on it. We must have full time employment for our workers, whether in factory, shop, mine, or on the railroads, in offices or wherever they may be.

There is no cure for unemployment but work. To secure it we must have the home market for the consumption of home products. And the benefits and results of the adequate protection which I advocate will diffuse through every activity of the land.

Phillips Lays Crime Wave on Dry Laws

Thomas W. Phillips, candidate for the Republican nomination for governor on the anti-dry ticket, addressed the League of Women Voters in McCreery's last night. He said:

It is impossible for me to over emphasize the fact that prohibition has created conditions that invite corruption and make sin inevitable.

A recent news item from London stated that Britain's prison population is declining so rapidly that more jails are to be sold.

The two foremost countries suffering from overcrowded jails are the two prohibition countries, United States and Finland, and it has been suggested that we could save money by renting vacant prisons in England rather than build new ones here.

Contrast conditions in wet England with those in dry United States. Recently Attorney General Mitchell, having been invited to testify before the Senate Judiciary Committee, said the Federal prisons were so crowded, due largely to prohibition convictions, that enforcement of the dry law by the Department of Justice must slow down pending action by Congress to provide additional penal facilities.

Makes Criminals

Prohibition fanaticism has sent thousands of comparatively innocent boys to jail for some trifling offense and these inexperienced prisoners are crowded into cells with hardened criminals only to be turned loose as graduates in the curriculum of crime.

They return to society, but they are anti-social for their hearts are filled with hate and their whole being is saturated with determination for revenge.

Prohibitionists have been the undisputed masters of our governments for more than 10 years and with an inhuman indifference they have seen conditions grow steadily and progressively worse—larger prisons and more prisoners.

Even the recent burning alive of hundreds of helpless victims in an Ohio penitentiary has not penetrated their calloused indifference or lessened their demands for more blood and more blasted souls.

New Conscience

Effective reforms are those that arise from an enlightened public conscience. To attempt to force provincial laws upon a cosmopolitan people is comparable with forcing a small hat on a big head.

If the hat splits, the wearer presents a ludicrous and undignified appearance; if it does not split he suffers and becomes irritated.

Our Sunday blue laws are out of harmony with modern life and when applied to cities, they make an actual if not a theoretical discrimination between the rich and the poor."

Pittsburghers Get Gasser in Somerset

SOMERSET, Pa., May 3.—(AP.)—A gas well which the owners estimated would supply several towns of 5,000 population with gas has been brought in on the O. S. Miller farm, five miles north of here, by Dr. W. R. Dougan, Somerset dentist, and Pittsburgh associates. The gas was found at a depth of 3,000 feet. The well is the first in 25 years in this district to give forth a large quantity of gas.

Woman Asks $25,000 For Husband's Death

Mrs. Mary Cullen yesterday filed suit against the Pittsburgh Railways Company for $25,000 damages for the death of her husband, William H. Cullen, February 22. The accident occurred while he was crossing the street at Carson and South Eighth streets, being run down by a car. He died the same day of the accident.

Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Several prominent Pittsburgh women have organized a Birth Control League. Do you think the Pennsylvania laws which hamper the activities of such organizations are antiquated and should be repealed?

The REV. JAMES R. COX, pastor Old St. Patrick's Church: As everyone knows, the Catholic Church is unalterably opposed to birth control propaganda. Naturally that goes for me as well. If the Pennsylvania laws are strict, then they should remain so. No change should be made.

Father Cox

JEANNE SEAVERNS, elocutionist, Downtown: Birth control is a deeply controversial question, and both sides have many adherents. I think, however, that the present laws are the best for the problem and that they should not be modified.

Miss Seaverns

MRS. J. A. GETTIG, Braddock Women's Club: To tell the truth of the matter, I haven't given the problem of birth control much consideration. It is indeed an important subject bearing on modern day modes of living. Many individuals have different opinions concerning the matter, due to its controversial nature.

Mrs. Gettig

DR. MAX SCHOEN, Department of Psychology, Carnegie Tech: There are many cases where lives of children have been blighted or distorted by conditions into which they were born, by lack of such knowledge. Any person with any love for children would welcome intelligent birth control, if it mean that babes are received with love and affection. I think the present laws are too strict.

Dr. Schoen

MRS. RAYMOND KAUFMANN, Council of Jewish Women: I feel that it is high time the moral code of America should be modified to solve the problem of whether or not to exercise birth control. Civilization is rapidly approaching new ideals, and it seems that what was immoral a half century ago doesn't go today. The state laws should be modified to some extent.

Mrs. Kaufmann

DR. AMELIA DRANGA, Congress of Women's Clubs: The current idea about birth control is not represented. It doesn't mean that the births of children should be controlled. It protects, in a great way, the rights of children so they will not be cheated out of the rights they deserve through life. The present legislation should be repealed and sane birth control laws made. Birth control means the elimination of the unfit.

Dr. Dranga

G. O. P. CURB AIM OF DEMOCRATS

J. Sedwick Kistler and John M. Hemphill, candidates, respectively, for the Democratic nominations for United States senator and governor, spoke at the League of Women Voters' dinner last night in McCreery's.

Kistler declared he would defer replying to a questionniare submitted by the League pending the adoption of a platform by the Democratic State Committee.

He believed, he said, that the state needed a strong minority party to spur the major party on to the passage of beneficial legislation and to restrain it from passing questionable proposals.

Hemphill said he favored permanent registration of voters if it would keep election cheaters from listing cats, dogs and tombstones as has been reported.

He said the Democrats' chief interest in the present campaign was in watching the Republicans make a show of themselves. He issued a warning against any attempt by disgruntled Republicans to form a fusion with Democrats because even though the movement would be successful it would only be "a rocket in the sky."

Democrats should not be beguiled into partnership with defeated Republicans because the latter would soon sidestep back to former party lines, Hemphill pointed out, although he believed many Republicans would vote the Democratic ticket.

He declared that the best election reform for the present was the cultivation of a vigorous minority party that would be a watchdog, not only for the treasury, but for the ballot box as well.

He said that the Republican political machines were a menace to clean elections that could not be overcome by vote machines.

Hemphill urged the placing of an honest member of the minority party at each polling place and declared that would tend to insure clean elections.

CANCER CLINICS HERE URGED

More than 1,200 new cases were received last year and the number of treatments totaled 17,085, Mr. Braun said in citing the increased demand on the foundation's facilities. Plans have been made to add three clinics this year, he said.

Homestead Hospital Gives 15 Diplomas

Fifteen nurses, members of the largest class ever graduated from the Homestead Hospital School of Nursing, last night were presented with diplomas at commencement exercises in the First Presbyterian Church of Homestead. The principal speaker was the Rev. C. Wallace Petty, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Pittsburgh. The diplomas were presented by Ralph H. Watson, president of the hospital board. Five of the graduates were from Homestead.

Ardeth Angered and Afraid When Ken Stays Away

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Ardeth Carroll, who rooms in her Aunt Stella's boarding house, is being wooed by Neil Burke. While out motoring with Neil, Ardeth sees Ken Gleason. Ardeth has never been introduced to Gleason and the two just gaze at each other. Neil becomes jealous. Later Neil asks Ardeth to marry him, but she refuses. Ardeth goes to work for Jeanette Parker in a new specialty shop. There Jeanette introduces Ardeth to Gleason. The two new friends go on a Sunday outing together to a houseboat owned by Gleason. Ken explains that he is employed by Jeanette's father. They return to the city after a happy day. Ardeth hopes to see Ken soon, but she is disappointed. Ardeth is surprised when she meets Ken one evening after leaving the shop. They have dinner together. After driving Ardeth home Ken says he could not stay away from her. Ken brings Tom Corbett to the shop and introduces him to Ardeth. Ardeth is surprised when she reads that Ken is engaged to Cecile, Jeanette's sister. Ken denies the story. He asks Ardeth to marry him and she consents. They plan to keep it quiet because of Ken's mother, who wants Cecile as a daughter-in-law. Scolded by her aunt for getting home late at night Ardeth explains that she is engaged to Ken.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXII.

She flashed a merry glance up at him. "Just you try to get out of taking me to dinner! Before you, sir, you see that almost obsolete species which once flourished on the stage and screen—the innocent gur-rl who has been flung out of home in a snowstorm. Snow is a little difficult to manage in August, but use your imagination. And if you could manage to whistle 'Hearts and Flowers' we might get a very pretty effect."

But when she told him of the happenings of last night his face grew grave. The blue eyes rested on her with a contemplative air, slightly troubled.

"Just the same, Moth, it makes me feel like a bum getting you thrown out of the place like that. I feel—sort of responsible—as though I'd cost you your home."

She had laughed at him, but a warm gladness stole through her. Oh, let Ken feel responsible—and protective. It bound him the more surely to her. Made him more truly hers.

The summer passed as a time of youthful dreams and laughter. A time which took on the irresponsible tinge of a dream when Ardeth came to look back upon it in the days to come.

Waking each day to the warm airiness of her skytop room. Seeing the sun warm on the chimney tops outside her window. Hearing the sparrows—little feathered gamins of the city—chirping and fighting on the gravel roof.

Walking to work while the early sunshine gilded the streets, her heart so brimming with love and gladness that she wanted to share it with all she passed.

Crowds Return

The smokerie grew more crowded as its patrons rejurned from their vacations, tanned from the sun of Del Monte or Pebble Beach. Of Coronado, Tahoe. Yachting trips to the islands.

They met with animated greetings. Brimming with personal gossip. Detached fragments of their talk drifted out into the outer shop where Ardeth worked and dreamed, a faint warm smile in her golden eyes.

Ugly rumors—delicately murmured. . . . The real reason the de Courcevs left town. The whereabouts of the youngest Harcourt girl when she was supposed to be visiting her grandmother in Hilo. What Mrs. Hammond had called Mrs. Ellis and what Mr. Ellis was going to do about it. If it were true young Sinclair Cross really jilted Katherine Garnie before he eloped with the Herron girl.

Something leaped in Ardeth's heart at that last, choking her so that she hated Cyril Underhill as his silky drawl filtered through to her.

"But then Katherine was always one of those romantic fools who had the quaint notion that a pretty face could win out with a fat checking account. Cross was in debt to half the town, and the Herron girl is an heiress. What else could she expect?"

Ardeth Angered

"I hate a doormat woman!" came Cecile's crisp voice. "If I wanted a man I would get him—without any tears or broken hearts, either!"

"You can afford to think so, dearest lady—" Ardeth could imagine the mocking bow which accompanied this. "You who have both the pretty face and the—pardon me for mentioning such a thing—fat checking account!"

A tinkle of appreciative laughter came from the smokeries at this, but the eyes of the girl in the outer shop flashed with anger. For a moment her heart burned with the fanatical rage of Neil. Oh, these sleek, silken ladies who didn't know what it was to work for their bread! Who saw all the good things of life as their natural due! But under the anger lay the sharp edge of fear. After all . . . After all!

Cecile, sleek and elegant, in her new fall ensemble, which cost more than Ardeth's year's salary. Beautiful, secure—almost insolent in her assuredness. Did Cecile always get what she wanted?

That night, as they sat in the cozy intimacy of the car eating chicken sandwiches he had fetched from a highway sandwich stand, she had wanted to ask Ken about it. Questions rushed impulsively to her lips. Had he hinted of his love to his mother? Was he still seeing Cecile, the nights he was not with her? When did he plan that they should marry?

But shyness placed a barrier on the words. She could not get them past her lips—perhaps because she feared the answers—or feared more the wary, baffled look which would slip into his eyes. Times now, when she suspected a moodiness in him. Looking up quickly in their long drives, she would see his lips tightly compressed, the fighting blue eyes narrowed as though his private thoughts were not all pleasant.

Depressed at Times

And that mysticism which formed the deeper part of her nature warned her to stillness, all unconsciously. Oh, handle it softly, this delicate curtain of dreams and kisses, whispered her heart, for behind it lay that which would draw her tears.

Sometimes she would wake in the night, stifled. Her heart thumping against her ribs until it shook her tense body. Unbearable depression dragging her down, drowning her in depths of aching dreariness. There was no hope or joy in the world; there was not even Ken.

Was it dream which brought this mood, she wondered wildly. Or was some power watching her?

But in the morning, when the sun gilded the chimney tops and the sparrows wrangled happily on the roof, it was gone. Curtains blowing in on the morning breeze. Another golden day leading to Ken. Oh, life was sweet!

One Saturday night toward the end of October she waited for him in the empty shop. Jeanette had left early in the day for a week-end party. Ah Ling had gathered the last round of teacups, emptied the last ash tray, and had departed for her Chinatown home, a jauntily incongruous little figure with green silk trousers flapping under her small American sport coat.

Kens Stays Away

As she waited, Ardeth slipped into a mood of pensive happiness. Always sensitive to beauty, she noticed how the low rays of the autumn sun striking through the window held a copper tone. It fell richly on the lustrous silks of Mandarin coats—set a pigeon-blood cloisonne to glowing like a ruby—made a glory out of an amber-sticked fan. The room breathed of incense and perfume. And suddenly there was something about this inanimate beauty which stifled the girl. Intolerable sadness creeping over her, so that she put on her wraps and went outside to stand in the dying sunlight, sniffling the live salt wind.

An hour later the outlines of the high buildings were blurred with twilight. The crowds of workers had departed from Grant avenue, but Ardeth still lingered in the doorway of the shop, fear and anger battling in her heart.

Election Judges Named By Court

S. Herbert Biddlestone, of 1710 Evans street, McKeesport, has been appointed judge of elections for the Sixth district of the Seventh Ward, McKeesport, by Judge Harry H. Rowand, in Quarter Sessions court, to take the place of Thomas A. Jeffris, resigned.

Wilbert Schevelan, 1308 Adams street, has been named judge for the Eighteenth district of the Twenty-first Ward, vice Thomas Hilliard, moved from the ward.

World's Happiest Man in Almshouse

NEW YORK, May 3.—(AP.)—The happiest man in the world, as he calls himself, has lived within a mile of the heart of Manhattan for 57 years without ever doing a lick of work, riding a street car or automobile or talking over the telephone. Thomas Auer, 67, has been at the City Almshouse on Welfare Island, in the East River, since 1880, a victim of a mild form of paralysis.

WIDOW GIVEN COMPENSATION

Argument was heard in the Superior Court involving the question of whether an employe of a concern, working on a commission basis for a nursery, is an employe under the Workmen's Compensation act.

The Workmen's Compensation board decided the question in the affirmative, awarding Mrs. Antha M. Lenhart, of 155 East Otterman street, Greensburg, $1,378. Her husband, Henry Lenhart, slipped on an icy pavement December 27, 1927, and was so badly hurt he died shortly after.

Emmons & Co., of Newark, N. J. for whom he worked on a commission basis, refused to pay the award and Mrs. Lenhart brought suit to collect the claim, making the American Mutual Liability Insurance Company co-defendant. The Court of Common Pleas of Westmoreland County, decided in the widow's favor. It held that the decedent, having solicited orders for plants in a certain district for a period of years, had a drawing account, made suggestions for new orders and replacements, was an employe, within the meaning of the Workmen's Compensation act.

5 TAKEN AFTER $50 HOLDUP

Five men were being held by police today in connection with the holdup late yesterday of the meat market of George Bender at 2816 Charles street, North Side. Three bandits who invaded the shop obtained $50 from the cash register. The license number of the machine they used was noted by a pedestrian and police stated it had been stolen earlier in the day from California avenue and Halsey place.

Several hours after the robbery Lieut. Earl Means with Patrolmen Nicholas Battis and Leo Fitzgerald, arrested five men on suspicious person charges. The five were picked up in Woods Run avenue at Brighton road. The suspects say they are John Talarico, 18, his brother Anthony, 23, both of 12 Mitchell street; Steve Waters, 30, of 1011 Grand avenue; Bob Hallowell, 19, of 1009 Smithton avenue, and John J. Puerer, 30, of 3227 Central avenue.

Police say Walters had a loaded revolver. The machine used in the robbery of Bender's store was recovered, police say, in a garage in Langtry street, rented by Anthony Talarico.

WORLD AIR LINE PREDICTED

Airplanes and rigid airships will be combined for a world-wide system of airlines in the future, Commander Charles E. Rosendahl, of the United States Navy, believes. Commander Rosendahl, who was observer on round-the-world flight of the Graf Zeppelin, spoke last night in Syria Mosque at a meeting of the National Electric Light Association.

Commander Rosendahl believes that the planes will be used for overland service and the larger craft for ocean crossings. He also is of the opinion that an American merchant marine of the air, with operations extending to every quarter of the globe, will exist in the "not distant future."

The speaker discussed the development of aviation facilities and told of the two huge airships now under construction for the government. He told of his flight around the world and of flights he made on the Los Angeles, of which he is commander.

The additional gift was made when the architect's investigation indicated that the $2,000,000 would not be sufficient for the cost of the buildings planned.

LEGION FLIERS VISIT HERE

Col. A. J. Ford, representative of the national officers of the American Legion, flew to Bettis Field in the plane "The New Arbella" yesterday, to extend to city and county officials and members of the local posts of the American Legion, an invitation to attend the national convention of the Legion in Boston, October 6. Gov. Frank G. Allen, of Massachusetts; Mayor James M. Curley, of Boston, and Col. Carroll J. Swan, of the legion convention group, extended the invitations.

The plane was flown here from Columbus, by Russell Boardman, and besides Col. Ford, it carried E. T. Huddleson, radio operator, and Frank Merry, mechanic. The party will leave for Washington today. During the trip here the party established communication with station KDKA through their small radio set and obtained directions to Bettis Field. Sixty-seven cities are to be visited by the party.

DAILY TRUE STORY

Parrot Disease!

Mrs. Lang had dropped in to listen to Miss Ritter.

People in Hadfield who knew Ann Ritter—and who didn't—dropped in to listen to her. They seldom had an opportunity to do much of the talking unless they came in breathlessly and started at once with a sibilant "Did you hear——"

Then Ann Ritter listened tolerably well, shooting in questions here and there to get every detail of the local gossip so that she in turn might run about with it and serve it with the embellishments that generally put a new undesirable phase on it.

This day as Miss Ritter peered out of the side window across her trim lawn to the Bristow house she stared eagerly. She had noted someone going up the front walk.

"It's that Dan Kelsey," Miss Ritter hissed, much as though she were saying "It's dynamiters!"

"He's kind of sweet on Nina——"

"Sweet? Yes, the kind of sweet a man is when he is set and determined to bring about the destruction of a girl. Dan Kelsey has been hangin' 'round Nina ev'. since he come home from that engineerin' school. Land sakes if Dan Kelsey got to be an engineer why ain't he a runnin' an engine instead of lallygaggin' 'roun' Nina Bristow all the time? It——"

"Well, for once Martha Bristow has got her eyes opened! She's sendin' Dan Kelsey away and there's Nina up at her window this very minute—see. Mis' Bristow's shet the door in his face—well for good gracious sakes, Mrs. Lang, look at this! Look, will you? Of all the doin's! Nina Bristow has raised her winder and tossed a note out to Dan Kelsey—of all things!"

"Love will find a way," sighed Mrs. Lang, whose thirty years of married life and six children, who had each made her a grandmother, had not erased all of romance in her soul.

"Love! How you talk! In my day if a couple was in love they courted openly, and if they met on the sly it wasn't the right kind of love, but if Nina Bristow thinks——"

Down by the Lake

"I don't know—sometimes parents try to arrange their children's marriages when they haven't no right to do so at all. I never said a word to my six children and they all done pretty well——"

"You know what I mean, Mrs. Lang. I'll put a flea in Martha Bristow's ear about that. Like as not Nina is arrangin' to sneak out tonight with Dan Kelsey, probably in the grove down by the lake—pretty goings on, I must say!"

"Well, you ain't sure. Ann, you don't know what is in that note Nina throwed down to him——"

"There wouldn't be nothin' decent in such a note, would there?"

"Young folks have been known to write decent notes to each other, Ann——"

"There you go, always glossin' things over when it is the truth we seek, the truth to keep us awake to what is going on."

She paused to watch Dan Kelsey hop into the car, wave his hand and drive away.

Nina Bristow, working in her room, knew that her aunt Martha wouldn't let Dan see her. She had told Dan as much the night before, when she managed a few words with him at the postoffice.

Martha Bristow, Nina's aunt, the unmarried sister of her late father, had her heart set on marrying Nina to Sylvester Goodwin, because he was a noted pillar of the church.

Dan Kelsey's father had been a poor man, a local harness-maker in those days when automobiles relegated harness-making to a nearly obsolete and decidedly unprofitable trade. Dan had worked his way through college and the engineering course. He had been away from his home town for five years. When he left Nina Bristow seemed just a kid.

He strolled down to the postoffice. Nina looked at him shyly.

Young and Wild

"You are Dan Kelsey. I know you, but we weren't ever very good playmates. You used to chase me with hop-toads and you scared the wits out of me because I thought hop-toads made warts—I had plenty in those days, Mr. Kelsey!"

"No more hop-toads, Nina—and I'm still Dan," he said as they walked up the Hadfield main street to the Bristow home.

Aunt Martha didn't mind that. But when Nina began to go about with Dan regularly, Aunt Martha took her to task.

"I feel bounden to do my duty, Nina. I'm your poor dead father's sister, and I must watch over you. I can't let you throw yourself away on that Dan Kelsey, he's young and probably wild, and you know that Sylvester Goodwin wants to marry you."

Nina wouldn't have married the deacon if she had never seen Dan Kelsey. Now she wouldn't marry anyone except Dan. Dan had already asked her. He was going out to Arizona right away on a big job for his firm. Nina wanted to go with him, and intended to do so. Dan planned to marry her within a week.

This particular day when Dan had called Martha Bristow had been brutally frank with him.

"It ain't right for you to call on Nina; she's as good as engaged to Deacon Goodwin," Martha had told him.

"Well, I'd like to see her a moment—er—before I go way," Dan said. He had been warned of this coming cold reception.

"Nina's upstairs, she ain't feelin' well. I'd best not disturb her."

Dan had lifted his hat. Martha had grimly slammed the door. Nina had tossed down the note. Ann Ritter had seen all of this.

The note had been short—and delightful. Nina had written:

"Dear—She's going to Winton next week for several days. Keep away until she goes—then I'll do as you say."

By doing as Dan said, Nina would drive with Dan to the county seat, be married and go on out West with him.

Tells of Note

Mrs. Lang finally took her departure. Ann Ritter let her out the front door. Mrs. Lang wasn't down to Ann's front gate before Ann was almost galloping across the lawn to see Martha.

"I seen that Dan Kelsey, Martha," Ann said, all in a breath as she sat down in the kitchen. "I seen you shut the door in his face, but I also seen what went on and you never know it. Nina she riz up her winder and tossed down a note to him—"

Nina had come down from the kitchen stairs.

"Well, I seen——"

Nina turned to her aunt and smiled.

"Auntie, you should have let me tell Mr. Kelsey what I wanted to—I had to write it—I told him not to call again, as I couldn't see him any more. You go and ask him. I knew if I did that he wouldn't call here and bother you."

The next week Martha Bristow went on her annual trip to friends in the adjoining town of Winton. Before she went she called on Ann Ritter.

"Sort of keep your eyes on Nina, Ann," Martha said, "for while I ain't worrying about her, that Dan Kelsey might come over and pester her!"

No house was ever watched closer. Two days later Dan drove up. He wasn't up the walk before Ann Ritter was running across the lawn to head him off. Nina came to the door. She gave Dan a queer look.

"Mis' Bristow says for me to tell you to keep away and not pester Nina," Ann cried shrilly, "and if you don't I'll telephone her at once."

"You shouldn't call on me, Mr. Kelsey," Nina said, coldly, "you got my note—you can't see me any more."

"I just wanted to hear you say it," Dan said.

He made a low bow to Ann, winked at Nina and drove away. He went to Doc Carleton's office. The doctor's son had been in Dan's engineering class in college.

Elopement

"Doc," Dan said, "I'm going to elope with Nina Bristow tomorrow night—I want you to do something to keep that Ann Ritter where she can't see us or she'll telephone Nina's aunt and spoil everything."

"That—old gossip! I can probably get her away, but no power can stop her wicked tongue—ah, I have a plan," He explained.

Ann Ritter was frightened.

He used a long word.

"I don't feel well," Ann agreed. "What's that disease?"

"Parrot disease," the doctor said.

Everyone screamed. Everyone had read about it and as at two places where Ann called, they kept parrots, it looked bad.

The doctor examined her. It was at this time that Nina and Dan made their getaway.

"But, doctor, are you sure it is parrot disease?" Ann asked. The doctor said he was pretty sure. He said:

"Oh yes, you have all the symptoms of parrot disease, Ann, you repeat everything you hear and make it sound much worse!"

To One and All—

As Voluntary Chief of the Volunteer Fire Department, I respectfully ask that young and old keep out of my way to and from fires. Yesterday, when responding to what I believed to be a fire, I ran smack into an old acquaintance. It was an embarrassing situation, as I was forced to stop and shake hands, and in the meantime I misplaced my bucket. Please do not let this happen again.

Which Face Would Win?

Which Man Could Conquer the Other?

JACK SHARKEY. HE WON. | PHIL SCOTT. HE LOST.

The American, Sharkey, beat the Englishman, Phil Scott, and Many Englishmen believe that Phil Scott did not have fair treatment. They think he should have had the decision because he was fouled or for some other reason.

Into the niceties of prize fighting "ethics," if you will excuse a word out of place, it is not necessary to enter.

But one look at these faces show you that if Scott had won it would have been an accident.

A thousand men could have thrown John L. Sullivan out of the window in a "rough and tumble." But in a fight, Sullivan could have beaten any one of them inside of two minutes.

The human face, which through the eyes, forehead, mouth, chin and ears, reveals the spirit and will back of it, is a very interesting study.

These faces are interesting to millions because they have to do with fighting, in which the crowd is much more interested than in art, literature, Shakespeare or the musical classes.

Look at Sharkey's chin, jaw and eyes. Then look at Scott's. Which would you pick to win?

Which would any ENGLISHMAN pick to win?

But for fighting you would bet 10 to 1 on Sharkey's face without knowing anything else about the two men.

Synthetic Babies

Lord Birkenhead's Prediction.

Forecasting the future is a favorite indoor sport of the human race, and has been since the first medicine man tried to predict the weather. It remained for Jules Verne, H. G. Wells, Julian Huxley and others to put the prophecy business on a scientific basis. Now Lord Birkenhead, clever British statesman, writes a book entitled "The World in 2030," in which he shows us what we may be then.

Children will be produced in laboratories. There will be no more mothers. Birth is a chemical phenomenon, quite within the scope of science.

"Beefsteak," bread, sugar, all other food will be grown by the ton, also in laboratories.

Men will work one week and loaf three weeks.

Tariffs will be abolished.

Television will make it possible for nations to see and hear debates in their parliaments or congresses, and for the entire population to vote on the question at issue within 20 minutes.

There will be a federation of Continental Europe, and the United States may join the British Empire, or the British Empire the United States—it doesn't matter much which.

Returning to babies, Lord Birkenhead says that religious bodies will bitterly combat the plan of producing them from bottles, and that the first scientists to advocate and practice this new method may be lynched or otherwise martyred.

The fiercest antagonisms will arise, he says, and the different creeds will fight it as a violation of nature and an affront to the laws of heaven.

Whatever you may think of his forecasts, you will doubtless agree that he is right on THAT point.

You may also regret that you cannot be alive in 2030 to see whether Lord Birkenhead has hit the mark.

Doubtless you remember, if middle-aged, how foolish you thought those visionaries who predicted that flying machines would sometimes be invented.

His Platform

Refreshing, Anyway.

Down in Robeson County, North Carolina, Bing Wishart is running for sheriff. This is his platform:

"I shall not go out to make any arrests in bad weather, when it's raining or cold or disagreeable.

"I will not make a raid on any man's whisky still or search a bootlegger's premises without first notifying them 48 hours in advance.

"I am in favor of disposing of all captured whisky as follows: Meeting the requirements of the sheriff and his deputies, the remainder to be turned over to the aged and infirm at the county home.

"The only reason I am running for sheriff is the salary."

Bing's platform has the rare merit of letting the voters know exactly where he stands. Incidentally, it is where most politicians stand, though few have the candor to admit it.

There's only one joker, as we see it. That pledge to turn over "the remainder" to the aged and infirm at the county home sounds like hokum. Who ever heard of a remainder after the needs of a sheriff and his deputies were met?

"Bugs" Baer Says:

The Night Census

Census indicates that we have millions of human binks scattered around between filling stations and lurking on detours.

"Bugs" Baer

But other millions have been missing from the vital budget. Some were overlooked during the eclipse of the sun and many were shanghaied in broker's offices.

In order to capture everybody the government got smart and started a night census.

Tex claimed a day census displayed extra partiality and favoritism on the part of the government. She is not quite such a wholesale employer of labor as Henry Ford or United States Steel. But she certainly keeps thousands of government agents busy.

She claims that you don't have to be sunburned to be a citizen. Think of the two million saxophone players who were overlooked in the day census.

How about lodge members and night watchmen who number way up in the king row of the adding machine. They pay taxes even if their office hours are upside down.

The midnight caucus shows over seven hundred thousand bridge dummies who registered at the last election. You couldn't check them up in the daytime because life to them is just one big eclipse of the sun.

America is a day and night institution and before knocking on the door you want to make sure who is parked in the hammock. A house-to-house canvas doesn't grab everybody because the mistress of the home is generally borrowing a cup of sugar from the lady next door.

The best way to take a census in this era of speakeasies is to yell, "Cops," and then count 'em as they come out.

Even a complete census doesn't mean that every man has given his right name. And every dealer in antiques and rare porcelain isn't a bootlegger.

There are millions of people whose constitutions revolt at fresh air and sunshine. Prohibition has caused so many queer occupations that the government is right when it waits until twilight and sneaks up on 'em.

The night and day census will be complete by May and we will find that we have almost 140,000,000 people here including week-enders.

But it is fortunate they thought of taking a check at night. Otherwise the place would have looked practically deserted.

THE RHIND PAPYRUS

By Archibald Henderson

One of the most beautiful and complete scientific works, published as the result of American scholarship, is the two-volume work, The Rhind Mathematical Papyrus. This is the most extensive mathematical treatise written before the sixteenth century B. C. which has come down to us.

This document was actually written more than a thousand years before mathematics began to make any noteworthy advance in Greece. It was written by one Ahmes in the reign of A-user-Re, about 1650 B. C., and is really a copy or paraphrase of one dating from the reign of Ne-ma-et Re, 1849 to 1801 B. C.

The exhaustive and exact character of the editing is a noteworthy example of American scholarship. The Ahmes manuscript has long been familiar to students of mathematical history. But until now no complete or adequate translation of the papyrus, except that of Prof. Peet, has been made. Dr. Arnold Buffum Chace and his wife, while on a visit to Egypt 20 years ago, determined to translate the Rhind Papyrus. During the course of the work, they associated with themselves, Dr. Ludlow Bull, associate curator of Egyptian antiquities in the Metropolitan Museum of New York, and Prof. Henry Parker Manning, of Brown University. The bibliography, prepared by Prof. Raymond Clare Archibald, lists more than 250 books, monographs and articles on the subject of Egyptian mathematics, particularly with reference to the Rhind Papyrus.

The first volume contains a free and readable translation of the entire manuscript, together with some account of Egyptian arithmetic, measures and geometry; a study of the method and aims of the Egyptian mathematician; and a note on the Egyptian calendar. The second volume contains the only true facsimile of the manuscript ever published, namely a photographic reproduction of the entire work; a copy of this in the original two-color hieratic form; a hieroglyphic transcription underneath the hieratic; a transliteration of this hieroglyphic into Latin letters, arranged from right to left as in the original; and, finally, on the facing page, a rearrangement of this translation from left to right, with English translation, left to right, underneath!

Consider, for instance, the value Ahmes gives for the ratio of the circumference of a circle to its diameter: 256 divided by 81. How did the Egyptians arrive at this particular ratio, which is singularly accurate for that early day?

It is believe that the Egyptians proceeded as follows: Suppose that two vessels of the same height, one with a circular base and the other with a square base equal to the circumscribed square of the circle, are filled with water. Then by weighing the water in each container it would be found that the quantities are as 64 to 81. Thus d square is to pi times d square over 4 as 81 is to 64, giving pi equal to 256 over 81.

The papyrus indicates strongly that the Egyptians even then were extraordinarily skilful in measuration. The value of the area of an isoceles triangle was found by them, it appears, to be correctly given as one-half the base by the altitude. It is also indicated as likely that the Egyptians knew the correct formula for the area of a trapezium as one-half the sum of the parallel sides times the altitude.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

As I write over in homicide court a 20-year-old creature is blubbering to go home to its mother.

You can't call him a man, this hulking, thick-lipped beast, with the furtive, bloodshot eyes. Jungle eyes. Yet, according to our law, he must be tried as a man for a very terrible crime. Several persons burned to death because this creature liked to "look at fires." While they were screaming in their final agonies he stood in the frantic throng, bubbling, chuckling and twitching with horrible glee. "Pretty fire! Pretty fire!" he cried. Presently, I suppose, they'll commit him to an asylum as a pyromaniac. But that won't bring those lives back again.

Awful, indeed. But how about OUR share in this thing? You and I are as responsible for that horror as that poor, simple-minded wretch. More responsible!

Our responsibility started the day a little boy began to "act funny." From that day on his folks knew, more and more surely, that something was wrong with the boy. What was wrong?

They didn't know. How could they know? Twisted bones, diseased flesh—these things they could have recognized and tried to heal. But twisted minds—"nobody knows about things like that except doctors." And there was no law which made them take that twisted mind to a doctor. Nor was any doctor appointed to come to them.

And so today people are dead, and, daily, others are being tortured or killed, with unspeakable horrors, by "funny people" who are allowed at liberty, without examination or any sort of restraint.

We could prevent those tragedies if we would make mental examination of all children compulsory, and compel parents to place all doubtful cases in public institutions.

Most of us, however, would fight such a law—partly because we are ignorant, partly because we are intensely sentimental. Our hearts ache for afflicted babies. We feel that they should be coddled as compensation for their terrible handicaps. And after all, what harm do they do? Just talk nonsense—and spill their food—and maybe pull the legs off flies! What does that matter? It matters a very great deal—for that unbalanced mind may, without a second's warning begin to torture human beings as nonchalantly as it now tortures flies.

No unbalanced mind is ever a safe mind. The most "good natured" idiot, whom the whole neighborhood loves and teases, is potentially as dangerous as the gorilla that mouths at you through the bars of the zoo. Don't take a chance on dangerous brutes, whether they have two legs or four. Don't sentimentalize about them or allow others to sentimentalize about them.

Make laws that will shut them up.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

Proof

Only so little done of all our dreams,
So few of all our fancies came to bloom;
We doubt, at last, the promise of hope's gleams
And feel our dearest longings formed for doom.
Time ruthlessly cuts down where we have sown,
Desires must wither in unfriendly soil,
And often we must journey on alone
While others reap the fruit of all our toil.

Only so little done! Herein it lies,
The certain proof we thirsted for in vain
While Earth vouchsafed unto our seeking eyes
No answer from green hill or plain;
So little done, but justice yet must be Achieved, and so God made eternity.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

All these facts are inexplicable on any theory of special creation. Save Evolution, no rational explanation of them has ever been put forward; and on the evolutionary view not only are they explicable, but full of meaning.

We reviewed the evidence from life's variability. If we laid more emphasis upon it than has often been done in the past, this is because the evidence from variability, like that from fossils, has of recent years increased enormously, both in amount and still more in cogency.

H. G. Wells

Now that a number of groups like birds and mammals and butterflies have had their minutest varieties classified and the details of their distribution tabulated, the old idea that species are the most real and definite units of life, or even that they are real and definite units at all, sharply marked off from other kinds of units has gone by the board.

There do exist sharply circumscribed species-units; but other such units intergrade or interbreed with one another. There is no crucial test by which we can distinguish between a local race or a sub-species, or between species and a genus.

There is often disagreement among systematists themselves as to whether a particular kind of animal or plant shall be classified as a full species or a mere variety.

There exist inter-breeding groups so variable that we would regard the extremes of variation as different species did we not know of the existence of all the intermediates.

All this lack of sharp lines and clear limits is to be expected if life's method is Evolution; but on the Creationist assumption it is chaos and confusion.

The considerable degree of variability to be found in all wild forms of life was emphasized, and the conclusions to be drawn from this fact were driven home by an appeal to the astounding changes which man has been able to bring about in his domestic animals and plants.

If greyhound, bulldog, toy terrier, and St. Bernard can all be formed out of wild-dog material in a few thousand years, then that living material is of an extraordinary plasticity, and will lend itself willingly enough to change and evolution.

And finally we have recited some of the facts of the distribution of animals and plants, and have shown that they, too, fall into place and become intelligible to the Evolutionist, but remain stubbornly meaningless on any other view.

All these lines of evidence lead to the same conclusion. The way in which each one corroborates all the others is impressive enough, but let it not be forgotten that the actual examples we have chosen are but a fragment of the mass available.

If an idea is true, it will apply in every part of its domain.

The domain of the idea of organic evolution is the whole domain of life; and the final evidence for Evolution is that throughout the whole domain the idea of Evolution helps our comprehension.

It explains old discoveries and leads us on to new; it draws order out of confusion; it gives meaning to what is otherwise meaningless, and brings thousands of isolated facts into a single related whole.

There is not one single character or quality of human beings, from the construction of their skeleton to the flush on their cheeks, from their embryonic development of their moral aspirations, which does not become more comprehensible, more interesting in itself, and more significant for the future, when viewed in the light that Evolution sheds upon it.

Whether we are dealing with the cone of a pine tree or the skull of a bird, the fertilization of a flower or the instincts of an ant, Evolution illuminates why they are what they are. And there is no other imaginable illumination.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, MAY 3.—Most of us yaps transplanted to the metropolis acquire a reputation back home of being distinctly high bicycle. And there is little we can do save take it on the chin. Until country cousins live in New York a while they will never understand.

Every person with a job of any consequence here has to build a barricade around himself. Otherwise he would accomplish nothing. All that extremely pleasant and loose familiarity of the crossroads must be tightened, or disaster is certain.

Aloofness becomes not a decision of choice but necessity if a person expects to survive. The moment one gets his head above water there are a thousand professional philanderers ready to clout him with an oar and he must resort to the well-known expedient of ducking.

Old friends from home find they must first submit to the searching questioning of a private secretary. This they somehow regard as a bit of impertinence—a touch of snootiness or putting on the lug. Yet the process is bunkered in common sense.

Bill Jones calls up on the telephone and announces it is Mr. Jones. A secretary wants to know his initials. He is then asked the nature of his business and Bill is likely to hang up in a snorting rage. Yet every New Yorker telephoning a friend submits to this formula. And it never offends.

The New Yorker, on account of the hurry and pressure of things, has to map out his working hours, his business and social appointments for at least 10 days in advance. If he swerves from this, he soon finds himself in a hopeless muddle.

It is a custom for old friends to drop into town in the morning and invite some former townsman located in the city to lunch. To their surprise they learn an appointment cannot be made for that day or perhaps indeed for several days. And thus old friendships curdle in unfortunate misunderstanding.

* * *

The truth is most New Yorkers, exiled from friends of long ago, crave this very back home touch so often denied them. They are more at ease with those who speak their language—but they must also make a living. Right now I can think of no one to whom I would rather talk than Harry Maddy and George Bovie, of Gallipolis, O.

* * *

Sunday draws many curious to railroad terminals. It is the day when theatrical troupers take to road tours. Young bloods are there to say farewell to chorus flames and great stars walk about in self consciousness before passing through the gates. To many it is the end of the world temporarily—they are leaving old Broadway. Even eyes of that hardened old trouper, George M. Cohan, grow moist every time he departs.

* * *

A Broadway lady smacker stood up in a cafe the other night to announce proudly he had never yet hit a lady who was not his own size.

* * *

Radio, it would appear, is a man's racket. Practically all the heroic figures of the air are men—Amos and Andy, Floyd Gibbons, Will Rogers, John B. Kennedy, etc. Two years ago in Paris I spent several weeks loafing around with Floyd Gibbons, who was fed up chasing wars. Then he came to America, began talking over the radio, and now four secretaries are employed to answer his mail. And he wears silk hats every evening—the big dude.

* * *

And it is reported several radio stars are already making vigorous efforts to reduce in preparation for television. There's precaution with a bang.

* * *

I think the best of excited utterances was from an old gentleman in our town who called out to the owner of a dog that rushed toward him with wild barks: "Call off your dog or I'll knock off his head off."

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Well, are you planning to put up your usual bluff this Summer?

Made arrangements to go to some Summer place beyond your means?

For a week or two you will live like a person with many times your income.

Then for the remainder of the year you will regret your foolishness.

Each year that you have come home from one of these splurges you have decided that never again will you please your vanity in such a manner.

But the next Summer you go through with the same program.

What have you gained by it?

Made any valuable friends?

Has your position in society greatly benefited?

Not permanently, in business or society, has it?
